

Admiral's son forsakes Navy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., who has been trying to lure young men into the Navy with easier hair rules and other reforms, has lost his Navy officer son to the tough-minded Marine Corps.

It was announced Friday that Ensign James G. Zumwalt's application for transfer to the Marine Corps had been accepted by Secretary of the Navy John Chafee, effective July 16.

Adm. Zumwalt, chief of naval operations, said he is "delighted" that his son was accepted by the Marines.

"This may come under the heading of locking the BOQ (bachelor officers quarters) door after the son has been stolen," he quipped.

The Navy's top admiral said, "I will have to watch Gen. Chapman's recruiting methods much more closely."

Gen. Leonard F. Chapman, Marine Corps commandant, has publicly refused to go along with the trend set in motion by Zumwalt toward loosening the traditional restrictions and sometimes harsh standards of life, dress and conduct to meet youthful demands and quiet unrest in the ranks.

Zumwalt has contended that his reforms mean higher morale and that discipline will be maintained in the Navy.

Mitchell sees war's end, Nixon election

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, predicting an end to U.S. involvement in the Indochina war by the next presidential election, Friday said the Republican Party will "have no problem re-electing Richard Nixon" in 1972.

Mitchell, who ran Nixon's 1968 presidential campaign, told Alabama GOP workers he expected the President to pull "many, many Republicans across the country" into office on his coattails.

"As far as the presidency is concerned, it (the war) is completely bottomed out," he said. "Everything is turning around the other way, and in 1972 I would predict we will have no problem in re-electing Richard Nixon."

Mitchell also discussed the nation's economy and the U.S. crime rate, which he said is "turning around."

The FBI will issue a report Tuesday showing "in a substantial number of major cities of over a million population, the crime rate is actually decreased," he said.

Mitchell said much of the President's problem with unemployment has been caused by troop reductions in Southeast Asia. He said unemployment is directly related to the number of people taken out of the armed forces.

Mitchell, in a later speech prepared for the Alabama Bar Association, urged Congress and the legal profession to develop alternative solutions to the "intolerable burden" imposed on the courts by habeas corpus petitions in criminal cases.

"Justice must be fair, impartial and protective of human rights, but it also should have another attribute — finality," he said.

New war secrets bared as high court takes case

M'Namara saw no solution

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara told President Johnson privately in 1966 that military escalation in North and South Vietnam was not having the desired effect and said he saw "no reasonable way to bring the war to an end soon," the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said Friday.

The newspaper said the memorandum from McNamara to Johnson was dated Oct. 14, 1966, and was contained in a secret Pentagon study of the war in Vietnam. It was written at a time when both men were speaking optimistically in public about progress being made militarily, the Post-Dispatch said.

McNamara was quoted as writing that the first year and a half of bombing of North Vietnam had failed to stem infiltration or break down the enemy's morale. He recommended leveling off the troop buildup at 470,000 men and holding the bombing at its 1966 level.

The Post-Dispatch said Pentagon documents showed the Joint Chiefs of Staff disagreed strongly with McNamara's assessment.

"In essence," McNamara was quoted as saying, "we find ourselves — from the point of view of the important war for the complexity of the people — no better, and if anything, worse off."

"This important war must be fought and won by the Vietnamese themselves. We have known this from the beginning. But the discouraging truth is that, as was the case in 1961 and 1963 and 1965, we have not found the formula, the catalyst, for training and inspiring them into effective action."

THE government has labeled the Pentagon papers "top secret" but the Post-Dispatch said the several hundred pages of facsimile copies it obtained bore no security classification. It said, however, there was a blank space at the bottom of each page where a strip of paper had been laid over the place where a security label is usually stamped.

In the October memorandum — and in one drafted for the President one month later — McNamara painted a gloomy picture of the pacification program aimed at bringing rural areas of South Vietnam under government control.

The report went on: "Pacification has, if anything, gone backward," McNamara said. He said

Nixon declassification plan bared by Tribune

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Tribune said Friday President Nixon "has decided to seek the cooperation of Congress in a project to declassify the mountains of secret documents in federal archives."

The Tribune's headlined story was published on the same day that Nixon addressed a convention of retired persons in Chicago before flying back to Washington.

The newspaper said Nixon's decision was prompted by the controversy over publications of Pentagon documents by various newspapers.

The documents Nixon seeks to declassify stretch back to the origins of World War II, the Tribune said. The unsigned Tribune story said such documents might also include background on the Bay of Pigs invasion of 1961, the Cuban missile crisis of 1962, and the reasons behind President Eisenhower's dispatch of U.S. troops to Lebanon in 1958.

"An early start on the program is critical, the President believes," the Tribune said.

"Only confusion, injustice and possible hazards to the national interest can result from the present system, which contains a built-in temptation for theft and misuse of the documents," the Tribune said in reporting the President's views.

The Tribune said Nixon has made inquiries and has been told "there are 100 million pages of classified material relating to World War II in federal archives. There are 75 million pages relating to the Korean War."

"... Much of the material has virtually no military or diplomatic sensitivity, the President has been told," the Tribune said.

"If declassification is not accomplished, he was warned, the risk is great that the material will be pirated as it has been in the case of the Pentagon papers. Disclosures in these circumstances might endanger the national welfare."

No hope left for 18 men trapped in 'hell tunnel'

Associated Press

"There's no hope for anyone left down there," a fire department spokesman said wearily Friday as rescue teams probed into the "hell tunnel" where a gas explosion had trapped 18 construction workers.

One of the men trapped Thursday survived by running through a wall of flames. Twelve deaths were confirmed.

A gas-fied fire inside the 5.5-mile-long tunnel, part of a 44-mile project to bring water from Northern to Southern California, flared anew before dawn.

The blast came near the tunnel's end, 250 feet below the surface.

Safety inspectors reported a continuing heavy concentration of carbon monoxide but expressed hope this could be removed when drilling of a new air shaft is completed.

Water in the tunnel also complicated rescue attempts. It was waist-deep in some sections. Scuba divers were called in.

The search may run over the weekend, officials said. The explosion occurred early Thursday when digging equipment at the head of the tunnel apparently ripped into a natural gas pocket.

The tunnel is near Olive View Hospital, severely damaged in the Feb. 9 earthquake that claimed 64 lives.

The explosion set off a fire that blocked exits and produced smoke that choked off the air supply from a ventilator shaft dug straight down from the surface, officials said.

THE same dangerous combination of smoke and fire — fueled by oil and natural gas leaks and con-

Times, Post series barred until ruling

The Supreme Court agreed Friday to give a speedy hearing to government claims that the national security is threatened by publication in the New York Times and Washington Post of articles on a secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has issued a warrant for the arrest of Prof. Daniel Ellsberg "on charges he had unauthorized possession of top secret government documents and failed to return them."

The warrant was signed just before midnight Friday.

The Justice Department said, "The material was described as separately bound sets of 47 and 18 volumes respectively of Xerox copies of a study of 'United States Vietnam Relations for the period 1945-1967.'" sored articles from the report. The court allowed the papers to report on only those documents which pose, in the government's view, no security threat. The hearing on the cases was set for 11 a.m. (EDT) today.

THE TIMES said it would await a Supreme Court ruling before resuming the articles and The Post said it would not resume them before the hearing.

Even as the full nine-member court was deciding to hear the case, a seventh news organization, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, reported it had gained access to portions of the 47-volume study tracing the origins of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Adding to the disclosures about the development of the war was a report by Newsday based on Johnson's unpublished memoirs.

Newsday said Johnson acknowledges in the book that his administration was planning to escalate the U.S. military commitment in Vietnam in early 1964. The Long Island newspaper said Johnson's book supports many of the findings of the Pentagon study.

The Supreme Court action came just hours before The Post would have been allowed to resume publication of its Pentagon papers' stories halted June 19.

Both the U.S. District Court and the U.S. 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals had ruled against the government's contention that the nation's security was endangered. The government appealed.

The Times also won the District Court case but the U.S. 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals ruled the Times could publish only certain documents in the report — those the government did not claim posed a security threat. The appeals court ordered a lower court to examine and rule on each of the contested documents individually.

This decision was appealed by The Times, which had been barred from printing any more articles of its own on the report since June 15. The Times began its stories June 13, three months after it said it received a copy of all but one volume of the study.

The Boston Globe, the third newspaper faced with government court action, cannot publish stories from its own copy of the documents pending a district court hearing Tuesday.

CONTINUING its articles based on the Pentagon study and other government papers, the Chicago Sun-Times said the documents showed President Johnson ordered North Vietnam bombed between 1965 and 1968 although a high-level panel had advised him in 1964 that such a tactic would not win the war.

In another story Friday, the Sun-Times said that an April 2, 1958, National Security Council document shows that President Dwight D. Eisenhower had established a secret policy to eliminate Communist control in Hanoi and unite the Vietnams into one country with a pro-American government.

Eisenhower had Central Intelligence Agency information that Ho Chi Minh, then president of North Vietnam, had overwhelming popular support throughout Vietnam, the paper said.

Articles based on access to portions of the Pentagon report also have been carried in the Los Angeles Times months ago, I called the city's tree trimming department and asked them to remove a tree on the parkway in front of a neighbor's home because the tree's roots had damaged my driveway and the sidewalk. I was told that the tree could not be removed because the property owner had not given his permission. Does or does not a property owner have any say regarding the trees on his parkway? E.C., Long Beach.

A. The parkway is city property and the city can remove trees from the parkway without the permission of the property owner, but the city's tree trimming department often abides by the property owner's wishes in borderline cases. If the tree is not diseased nor causing a major safety hazard, the city will allow the property owner to decide if he wants the tree removed.

Hired rock festival 'protectors' run amok

McCREA, La. (UPI) — Armed with chains, swords and shotguns, motorcycle gangs hired to boot out gate crashers Friday beat up long-haired youths among the 40,000 persons attending the "Celebration of Life" rock festival.

"We had one kid come in here with his teeth in his hand," said Dr. William Abruzzi, festival medical director. "We've had knife wounds, cracked skulls, everything from these people."

Point Coupee Parish Sheriff F. A. Smith said he would close down the eight-day festival if there was further violence.

Also armed with baseball bats, knives and long clubs swinging from ropes, members of the "Galloping Gosses" and the "Wheelers" patrolled the festival site, beating youths indiscriminately.

"We have a lot of abrasions and contusions coming in from these gangs," Abruzzi said. "We have some people acting as self-appointed custodians of the festival grounds."

One youth entered the infirmary tent with two black eyes, a swollen nose and knot on his head. He said the gangs had beaten him up.

A number of motorcycleists beat up five persons photographing nude girls swimming in the nearby Atchafalaya River.

The festival site is in Point Coupee Parish, about 60 miles north of Baton Rouge, on the Atchafalaya River, a tributary to the Mississippi.

Prior to the gang violence, the greatest problem faced by promoters was the lack of medical supplies. Abruzzi said conditions were among the worst he had seen at 14 previous rock festivals.

Abruzzi said he and his staff of four doctors were handling up to 1,500 patients a day. They were treated in an infirmary consisting of four tents and a mobile home.

Despite the problems rock artists took to the quickly constructed stage on schedule. Performers included John Sebastian, Chuck Berry, Eric Burdon and a number of circus performers.

Newlyweds Tricia and Edward Cox turned up Friday at their secret honeymoon spot — Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland where Cox asked President Nixon for his daughter's hand.

The couple was spotted at the mountaintop hideaway when they came out to greet Nixon on his arrival by helicopter from Washington to spend the weekend.

Tricia ran up to her father and gave him a big kiss when he stepped down from the helicopter. Cox shook hands with his father-in-law.

Mrs. Nixon was to join the group for something of a family reunion this weekend.

Nixon arranged to meet with his top fiscal advisers at Camp David.

Addict threatens Hughes

Combined News Services

NEW YORK — Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, was threatened by a knife-wielding heroin addict Friday as he toured a Harlem tenement, called a "shooting gallery" by addicts who take fixes there. Hughes, considered a possible contender for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, and three other senators fled to the street after the addict pulled the knife. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., and Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and newsmen and TV cameramen surprised six male addicts preparing to take shots of heroin in the dingy basement room.

Hughes, who was only a few feet from the man with the knife, said later he had not seen it. Apparently a cameraman had blocked his view. But he said he felt "it was a dangerous place to be in." Just minutes before the "shooting gallery" incident, Isaac Hayes, 16, a patient in the United Harlem Drug Fighters Clinic, located across the street in the old Harlem Hospital, showed Hughes five packs of heroin he said he had just bought. Hayes, a former heroin addict, said he had bought the drugs with $10 the drug agency gave him to show how easy it was to buy them in the area. Later when the press bus was leaving, the youth pointed out a man in a maroon shirt standing on the corner as the one who sold him the heroin.

Medina trial reduced

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. — Capt. Ernest L. Medina lost a bid Friday to have murder charges against him dismissed, and the Army then quickly reclassified his trial to a noncapital case in hopes of enhancing its chances of convicting him of crimes at My Lai. He could be given a life sentence, but not death, if convicted. The 34-year-old Montrose, Colo., officer is accused of 102 murders at My Lai on March 16, 1968, the day his infantry company swept through the Vietnamese hamlet on a search-and-destroy mission. One of Medina's junior officers, Lt. William L. Calley, has been convicted of 22 murders for his role in the operation, but now has the verdict under appeal.

Assassin fears quelled

CHICAGO — Secret service officials said Friday they have found no connection between the shooting death of a Squire, W. Va., man, killed in a gun battle with Chicago police, and President Nixon's visit here. The victim, James E. Beavers, 47, was described by his sister as a former mental patient who was highly critical of Nixon's Vietnam policies. Beavers was fatally shot Thursday in Grant Park, near one of Nixon's scheduled stops during his visit Friday.

War on nursing homes

CHICAGO — President Nixon Friday called for an end to federal Medicare and Medicaid payments to unsanitary and overcrowded nursing homes which he said have become "dumping grounds for the dying." Nixon said that although many nursing homes are first rate, others are deplorably substandard. "One thing you can be sure of, I do not believe that Medicare and Medicaid funds should go to substandard nursing homes in this country and subsidize them," he said.

Reds press offensive

SAIGON—North Vietnamese troops, capitalizing on their victory in capturing Fire Base Fuller, pressed their offensive just south of the Demilitarized Zone Friday and killed at least two Americans with shells and mines. In a bid to halt the summer drive, the Saigon government airlifted thousands of South Vietnamese troops to the embattled region, moving in a 2,500-man marine regiment at Landing Zone Sarge eight miles south of Fuller and 10 miles east of Camp Carroll.

Meanwhile, military authorities have confined U.S. soldiers in the Mekong Delta to their bases indefinitely in the biggest narcotics crackdown of the Vietnam war. More than 200 users of hard drugs have been discovered. A U.S. Army spokesman said the crackdown, which involved about 16,000 servicemen in the delta area, may become a Vietnam-wide program. At the same time, the United States began the eighth phase of its troop withdrawal program five days ahead of schedule Friday, announcing departure plans for the 35th Tactical Fighter Wing.

In Bangkok, the U.S. Embassy announced that American troop strength in Thailand is 32,000, down from a high of 48,000 in September of 1969.

$4 million painting

LONDON — A London-based American art dealer paid more than $4 million Friday for a Titian painting which the British nation wants. He said it would hang over his daughter's fireplace in London. Julius Weitzner paid the highest price in a sale which set a world record for an auction of Old Master paintings. He bought Titian's "The Death of Actaeon" from Lord Harewood, the Queen's tences for mail fraud and jury tampering.

The application came the day after the imprisoned labor figure announced he had resigned from all positions with Teamster affiliates.

Parole Board Chairman George J. Reed said the eight-member board would not consider Hoffa's application until after July 1.

Hoffa resigned as president of the two-million-member Teamsters union earlier this month.

War hero Audie Murphy wanted a "simple, plain and ordinary burial" at a private cemetery with the exclusion of "any and all public officials or military personnel," according to the terms of his will.

Instead, the nation's most decorated soldier of World War II was given a hero's funeral and buried in Arlington National Cemetery. He died in a plane crash May 28.

Murphy's estate at the time of his death was listed in excess of $10,000, according to the will which was filed for probate in Los Angeles Thursday.

Ellsberg friend defies court, won't testify

A friend and associate of Daniel Ellsberg Friday defied a federal court order to testify before a grand jury in Los Angeles about the "leaks" of the secret Pentagon papers and opened himself up to a possible jail sentence for contempt.

Anthony J. Russo, 34, who worked for the Rand Corp. in Santa Monica at the same time Ellsberg was employed there, maintained his silence even though he had been granted personal immunity on a motion by the U.S. attorney general's office.

U. S. District Judge William P. Gray set next Friday for a further hearing on whether Russo should be held in contempt of court. If he still refused, Russo could be jailed indefinitely.

Ellsberg has been named as the suspected source of the documents on the origins of the Vietnam war which have been printed in numerous newspapers despite the objections by the government that it endangered national security.

A supersecret grand jury inquiry was begun in Los Angeles early this week and Russo was the first witness called by Asst.

U.S. Atty Gen. Paul Vincent on Wednesday to testify about his association with Ellsberg in the Rand "think tank," which had access to the Pentagon papers.

Russo took the Fifth Amendment. On Vincent's motion, Judge Gray granted Russo immunity from prosecution but the witness again refused to testify.

His attorney, Joseph Ball, argued before Judge Gray Friday that his client and the court were entitled to know what specific areas the grand jury interrogation would cover before he would be satisfied with the immunity provision.

Russo, a long-haired although balding man with metal-rimmed spectacles, did not speak a word in court Friday and ignored newsmen's queries why he refused to testify.

Reporters asked Ball whether Russo was refusing to testify because he didn't want to "fink on a friend."

"Well, that's one of the first things you learn," said Ball.

Ball also told newsmen it was his opinion that the Pentagon papers did not endanger U.S. security or national interests.

Two copies of the 47-volume Pentagon papers are said to have been in the hands of the Rand Corp. at the time Russo and Ellsberg were employed there.

Another friend of Ellsberg, Linda Sinay, 29, did testify before the grand jury after being granted immunity. Her attorney said she testified about "truthful but inconsequential" matters.

The Los Angeles Times said she rented a Xerox copier which might have been used for duplicating papers for Ellsberg.

Vincent declined to say whether other witnesses would be called before the federal grand jury next week.

Meanwhile in Cambridge, Mass., a lawyer for Ellsberg said the notion that Ellsberg is going underground was "absurd."

"No one has charged Dr. Ellsberg with doing anything wrong," said the lawyer, Leonard B. Boudin, a visiting professor at Harvard Law School. "And one thing is clear — in the event his appearance is requested by a court, he is going to appear immediately."

Boudin was reacting to reports in Washington that he and Prof. Charles R. Nesson of Harvard had established a set of conditions under which Ellsberg would speak to FBI agents. "There was said to be some feeling in the Justice Department that the conditions might allow Ellsberg to avoid arrest."

Warning to tax delinquent given

From Our L.A. Bureau

Some 80,000 property owners who will still have not paid taxes amounting to $42 million were warned Friday that additional penalties will be charged if the taxes remain unpaid after June 30.

County tax collector Harold J. Ostly said the unpaid taxes represent 2.16 per cent of the $19.4 billion total tax levy for the county. At the same time last year the delinquency rate was 2.14 per cent, he said.

Ostly said the outstanding taxes, which should have been paid by April 30, now carry a six per cent penalty plus a $3 fee per parcel for preparing the delinquency list.

After June 30, an additional penalty of one per cent per month will apply and a redemption fee of $2 per parcel will then be added.

Ostly said about 5,000 notices of delinquent taxes have been returned to his office because of unknown addresses. If persons have not received delinquent notices, they should call his office at 625-3611, extension 64541 to obtain the bill, he said.

Copter forced down in port

Three passengers and a pilot escaped injury Friday when their disabled sightseeing helicopter made a forced landing in Los Angeles Harbor near the Vincent Thomas Bridge.

The pilot, E. Ray Poss Jr., said the helicopter started to vibrate sharply about 3:05 p.m. while flying on a routine "tourist special" from Ports of Call Village on the San Pedro waterfront.

A harbor patrol boat took the passengers back to Ports of Call while another towed the pontooned helicopter back to its base. Passengers were identified as Mrs. I. Ramero, 65, and James Rick, 12, both of Albuquerque, N.M., and Debbie Quiland, 21, of Palm Valley, Calif.

Trouble with the aircraft, owned by General Helicopters Inc., of Van Nuys, was later attributed to a 20-cent bearing and mechanics estimated a repair job would take minutes, Harbor Department spokesmen said.

Stricter county aid rules urged

By NOEL SWANN

From Our L.A. Bureau

County supervisors have been urged to adopt new welfare rules to prevent 2,000 families from going on to county general relief as a result of new work rule restrictions applied by the state.

In a report to the board Friday, county welfare chief Ellis P. Murphy said the 2,000 families cut off by the new state restrictions possibly could become eligible for county aid at an additional cost to county taxpayers of $1.5 million.

He said the families now receive assistance from the state-paid Aid To Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) program.

Under new rules proposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and scheduled to go into effect July 1, AFDC recipients who work more than 30 hours a week will no longer qualify for aid as unemployed parents.

Previously they could work up to 35 hours a week and still be treated as unemployed to qualify for the aid.

To counteract the shift of recipients to the county rolls, Murphy has proposed that the Administrative Code be amended limiting to 27 hours the amount of time a person can work and still qualify for general relief.

Murphy also wants the code changed to deny relief to anyone who refuses job training or employment without "good cause."

The state's new work rules also allow for aid to be cut off as soon as a recipient receives a job offer that would produce full-time work in the following month.

Previously aid would be cut off only after a recipient had worked for one full week.

Another restriction is that a person must be out of work for a full 30 days before he can qualify for aid.

Earlier this month the county's Public Social Services Commission opposed the new work rules on the grounds they would shift part of the state's burden to the county.

Court clears female bartender

Illegal bartending charges were dismissed against Sandra Teresa Clark, 28, in Long Beach Municipal Court because of a state Supreme Court ruling that voided the law under which she was charged.

Also cleared was bartender Pete Flores Sais, who was permitting Sandy to pour brandy at Misty's Cocktail Lounge, 1544 E. Fourth St., Jan. 20 when vice officers walked in and cited both of them under the state Business and Professions Code.

Judge J. Merrill Lilley dismissed the cases on motion of Deputy City Prosecutor Charles E. Ramsberger who cited a high court ruling that the section violated equal rights provisions of the U.S. and California Constitutions by forbidding women to tend bar.

The defendants, who did not appear in court, were represented by C. Ransom Samuelson, attorney for bar owner Roy Gerrard.

The settlement frees for disposition the mixture of vodka and orange juice that Officer Alfred Covarubias sealed in a plastic container as evidence after Sandy served it to him.

Fire hazard areas to be closed July 1

Fire hazard areas in the Angeles National Forest will be closed beginning July 1, it was announced Friday.

Closure of the areas will be in watershed regions adjacent to several foothill communities, according to William T. Dresser, forest supervisor.

Included are the watersheds near Ontario, Upland, La Verne, Claremont, San Dimas, Glendora, Azusa, Duarte, Monrovia, Sierra Madre, Altadena and La Canada.

Witness who fled Ungaro slay trial held in Oregon

Elony Christine Ledbetter, 24, prosecution witness who disappeared at the first murder trial of Oscar Columbus Ward for the slaying of a former San Pedro bookmaking kingpin, is being held in Oregon for return to Long Beach.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Robert L. Sills said Friday the witness had been traced to the small town of Milwaukee, Clackamas County, and he had secured an Oregon court order for her arrest.

Ward, 26, of 564 W. 15th St., San Pedro, is being held without bail pending his retrial before Superior Court Judge Roy J. Brown in the knifing of Antonio "Tony Frank" Ungaro, 57, in the victim's apartment at 1517 Park Western Drive.

Ward's first trial in April ended with a deadlocked jury.

Mrs. Ledbetter, Ward's former mistress and mother of his infant daughter, disappeared at the height of the trial, after Judge Brown had granted her immunity from prosecution for any testimony she might give.

Sills said William Pope, of the district attorney's investigation bureau, discovered Mrs. Ledbetter's mother lived in the Oregon town.

Mrs. Ledbetter was identified through photos sent to Oregon and was arrested Thursday after the court order was secured under an interstate pact for return of material witnesses in criminal cases.

Sills said the infant girl was with Mrs. Ledbetter, and officers left the child in the grandmother's custody.

He said he expects the witness to be returned here by the middle of next week.

Child support set for Mando Ramos

Mando Ramos, 22, former world lightweight boxing champion, agreed in Long Beach Superior Court Friday to pay $500 monthly child support to his estranged wife, Stella, pending further proceedings in her marriage dissolution suit.

In action ratified before Commissioner Roland Truman, the boxer also agreed to keep up payments and taxes on the family residence at 28036 Calzada Drive, San Pedro, which is occupied by the wife and their only child, Armando Jr., 1½.

The fighter's attorney, Albert C. S. Ramsey, said Ramos is currently living at Rosarito Beach, Mexico, while training.

In a dissolution petition filed June 10 Mrs. Ramos estimated her husband's earnings at $78,000 annually and stated her own as $56 a week in a temporary waitress job.

THE WIFE sought support while training for improved employment, and pending legal discovery proceedings to determine Ramos' assets.

The agreement reached before Truman gives Ramos reasonable visitation rights and forbids either party to remove the child from Southern California without the permission of the other. Each of the parties is awarded one of two family cars.

West Coast dock strike vote wins

More than 90 per cent of the 15,000 West Coast longshoremen have voted in favor of striking if necessary against shipping and terminal operators, the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union reported Friday.

No strike date has not been set. The current five-year contract expires June 30 and union officials said it will be sometime after if no new agreement is reached with the Pacific Maritime Association.

Negotiations resume Monday. Bargaining began last November but halted for three weeks during which the strike vote was taken. ILWU officials said exact tabulation will be completed sometime next week.

Two banks robbed by wig-wearing bandit

Two Orange County banks — one in Rossmore Shopping Center and the other in Westminster — were robbed of more than $2,500 within 15 minutes Friday. Police said it appeared one bandit robbed both banks. The first stickup occurred at 12:30 p.m. at United California Bank, 13915 Seal Beach Blvd., Seal Beach. The First Western Bank, 7751 Westminster, was held up 15 minutes later.

Bank tellers said the man who robbed them was in his mid-20s of medium height and weight and wore a wig and false moustache.

He ordered tellers at both banks to fill brown manila envelopes with "all the money." No weapon was seen.

In both cases, police said, the man appeared to be working alone. Witnesses said the bandit disappeared out the bank's doors and no vehicle was seen.

The bandit took $1,585 from the Westminster bank and "more than $1,000" from the Rossmore bank, police said.

Warrant issued in drug case

A Long Beach Superior Court judge issued a bench warrant for Gabor Bohl, 21, of 2925 Eucalyptus Ave., Friday for failing to appear for sentencing on drug possession charges.

Bohl is one of three persons arrested in a 1970 case that involved seizure of almost a quarter of a million pills and a quantity of hashish.

The judge ordered forfeiture of $5,000 bond on which he had allowed Bohl to remain free throughout a long series of court appearances.

Also scheduled for sentencing July 1 are John M. Mercado, 36, of 245 La Verne Ave., who has been free on $5,000 bond, and Dolores Barajas, 23, of the same address, free on $2,500.

At the time of the arrests, Jan. 29, 1970, narcotics officers reported that an undercover agent purchased a suitcase containing $30,000 worth of seconbarbital pills — "reds" — for $3,000 and that drugs totaling nearly $50,000 in street value were seized from the LaVerne residence.

Orphans sue for $450,000

Three Hillsborough children, who were orphaned when their mother was killed in a plane crash near Los Angeles, filed a $450,000 wrongful death suit Friday against Hughes Air West and McDonnell-Douglas Aircraft.

The suit was on behalf of Cynthia Kalbfleisch, 15, and her brothers, Gregory, 14, and Kelvin, 11 of Hillsborough.

The crash of a DC9 and a Marine jet fighter June 6 killed 50, worst in California history.

Corona is kept in hospital; heart tests show trouble

YUBA CITY (UPI) — Doctors Friday decided to keep mass murder suspect Juan V. Corona in the hospital over the weekend because of "significant changes" in tests of his heart.

Doctors said they still thought the chest pains of which Corona has been complaining were the result of tension, but "we can't rule out" a heart ailment.

Corona, 37, charged with 10 counts of murder in the deaths of 25 itinerant farm workers, had been scheduled to be returned to Yuba County Jail in Marysville Friday. He was admitted to Sutter County General Hospital in Yuba City a week ago.

Dr. Thomas Leavenworth, chief of staff at the hospital, said electrocardiogram tests during the past week have always shown "persistent changes," but the changes in tests Friday were "more significant than before." He said this prompted the decision to keep Corona at the hospital.

"We can't rule out definite heart damage," Leavenworth said. Tension still seems to be the probable cause of the pains, but "if he had some underlying problem it could be aggravated by tension."

Leavenworth said tests on Corona would be continued at least over the weekend. He said treatment now consists primarily of rest and surveillance.

Pair booked in gunshot slaying

Two Hollywood men have been booked on suspicion of murder in the gunshot slaying of James Thomas, 31, a visitor to Southern California from Alliquippa, Pa. Police arrested George Turkovich, 22, and Kenneth Kreutter, 25, both of Hollywood.

Agnew scores pullout date as raising false peace hopes PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Friday that administration critics who claim a public deadline for U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam would end the war are raising false hopes for peace to damage President Nixon's credibility.

"The issue of setting a withdrawal date... is a sham and a delusion," Agnew charged. "It offers nothing of substance, but rather more heartache for Americans and their allies."

"THERE IS not a scintilla of evidence in the record to suggest that Hanoi will be more reasonable if we set a withdrawal date. In sum, those who advocate a set withdrawal date without reciprocal and enforceable concessions by the enemy have been misled and in turn are tragically misleading Americans," he said.

The Vice President, in a speech prepared for delivery to the Young Republicans national convention, defended Nixon's Indochina policy against what he termed "persistent and vitriolic attacks" by critics and "distorted" news reports.

"No one has been more forthright or honest than President Nixon about the American presence in Vietnam," Agnew said. "Every pledge has been kept. The American people have not been deceived." But he said "the din grows, amplified night after night by our television networks and day after day in powerful liberal newspapers and journals," seeking to show that Nixon "is not concerned about peace" and "has no plan to end the war."

In fact, he said, the President is "the greatest enemy of war today."

"EVERY single step which the critics proposed has been taken, and on every occasion we had their assurances that peace would follow," Agnew said.

Each time the critics promised afterward that peace would come "if only" the United States would do a little bit more, he said.

"After all these 'if only's,' Hanoi still has not heeded mankind's concern for peace," Agnew said. "So let me add my 'if only':"

"If only the proponents of 'peace now' and 'out now' would let President Nixon conduct the foreign policy of our country; if only they would still their strident voices; if only they would cease attempting to undercut realistic policy decisions, then peace would have a chance in Vietnam."

"Then at least, Hanoi would cease to hold out for the bargain rates they hope to get from the super-salesmen of retreat."

Agnew said the Communists have "never — not once — promised that setting an American withdrawal date would result in the release of our prisoners of war... Indeed, our setting a date without reciprocal concessions would be a coup for the enemy."

"They will have had their cake and eaten it, too. Because when we perform unilaterally on our promise, American prisoners will still be languishing in their barbaric concentration camps. With that ace up the enemy's sleeve, they will continue to be in a position to barter human beings for political concessions they cannot legitimately justify."

Miss Two said she did not know why she twice had been passed over for promotion to lieutenant commander, which under Navy regulations meant that she must be dis-

WASHINGTON (AP) — The thieves of Wall Street are sophisticated enough to learn the art of computerized crime even if actual stocks and bonds are replaced by an electronic bookkeeping system, an insurance executive told senators Friday.

But an affidavit from a man who said he helped fence millions of dollars in securities stood as evidence, senators said, that some changes must be made.

"After 30 years in this business, I'm absolutely sure there will be ways found to steal via computer," John F. Beardsley, vice president of the Hartford Insurance Group, told the Senate's Permanent Investigations subcommittee.

"In fact," Beardsley said, "there may be losses of that type in existence today."

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., agreed saying, "Man's ingenuity is more flexible than any computer."

Beardsley and several other insurance and banking executives were followed by the filing of an affidavit from Herman Sandler, of Miami Beach, Fla., who has used the name Ily Sands in his career as a professional comedian.

In the affidavit, Sandler said that in the summer of 1968 he was asked by William Ricchiutti, an alleged associate in a gang of mail thieves run by Robert Cudak, for help in disposing of $30 million in stolen securities.

Sandler said he later was arrested, cooperated with police and was given five years probation.

In a second affidavit, Dr. Bernard D. Eichler, of Montclair, N. J., said Tony Boiardo, an alleged chieftain of organized crime in the New Jersey area, has a heart condition so severe he cannot travel to Washington to testify before the subcommittee.

Boiardo has been identified in sworn testimony as a buyer of stolen securities and other valuables taken from shipments or registered mail.

IN ADDITION, the doctor said, Boiardo has recurrent and severe attacks of hiccups, shortness of breath, severe depression and recurrences of mild congestive heart failure.

Henry J. Rohlf, executive vice president of the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York testified earlier that his bank has recovered from banks throughout the world $10.3 million worth of $13.1 million in negotiable U.S. Treasury securities that were stolen from the bank in October, 1969.

He said the bank still has no idea who took the securities.

He insisted that internal security in the bank is probably as tight as it can be but he added: "A bold and determined thief will try to beat any system."

"If one who is intent on getting rich quick or who is subject to pressures unknown to us decides to take a treasury bill out with him, I fear he is not going to be daunted because his briefcase is required to be kept in a locker or his I.D. card is always checked or because packages are carefully inspected..."

WAVE loses discharge appeal

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — A federal judge, noting the courts should not run the military, refused Friday to stop the Navy from discharging a highly rated WAVE lieutenant.

Navy Lt. Doreen Jean Two, 37, assistant personnel officer at the Whidbey Island Naval Air Station, was told to go to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco if she wanted to continue to fight the ouster.

"I'm fearful of judges running the military," U.S. District Judge William Goodwin said in granting a technical stay which would prohibit the Navy from discharging Miss Two before Wednesday, the day she is to be separated.

"I've been in the military and I don't feel I'm qualified (to run it)," he added.

LT. TWO, a native of Berwyn, Ill., received a special commendation from President Nixon in May for streamlining Navy personnel procedures and saving the military $600,000.

"I've saved the Navy over $1 million now and I was the only military woman given the award," Lt. Two said in an interview. "In fact, I was the only person in the Pacific Fleet to receive the award."

Miss Two said she did not know why she twice had been passed over for promotion to lieutenant commander, which under Navy regulations meant that she must be discharged. "That's the one reason I'm fighting the case," she said. "If I had screwed up and been a bad officer I would take my money (separation pay) and leave. My rights are being violated when I'm not told why."

She said the Navy is discriminatory by forcing women officers to make lieutenant commander within 13 years or be discharged while not setting a time limit for promotion of male officers. However, both men and women are discharged after they have been passed over for promotion twice.

Lt. Two asked Judge Goodwin to grant a temporary injunction prohibiting the Navy from ousting her until she could have a court test on the constitutionality of the law forcing her discharge.

"An act of Congress is presumed to be constitutional," Goodwin said. "And a court at this level should not find an act of Congress is unconstitutional."

"Promotion is a discretionary matter within the Navy, and personnel needs of the military should not be determined by the courts."

"We would need a separate judicial system to hear all the cases of officers who think they should be promoted," he said.

U.S.-Soviet space link

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Soviet and American space experts ended a spacecraft docking conference Friday with more agreements than differences and planned to meet again this December in Moscow.

A manned spacecraft center spokesman said Dr. Robert Gilruth, MSC director, and Boris Petrov, head of the 19-man Soviet delegation, initiated a joint "summary of results" of the five-day conference which also discussed joint U.S.-Soviet space missions.

"THE BULK of the requirements fall into the category of agreed items," an MSC report said of the technical details discussed at the conference and listed in the summary.

The spokesman said delegates from both nations continued discussions of future experiments to test a common docking system that could link Soviet and American spacecraft on joint spaceflights or in emergencies.

"The study of such experiments would be based on the premise that a first such experiment might be the docking of an (American) Apollo spacecraft with a manned orbital scientific station of the (Soviet) Salyut-type, and a subsequent experiment might be docking of a manned spacecraft of the (Russian) Soyuz-type with an orbital scientific station of the (U.S.) Skylab-type," an MSC statement said.

The statement reported the joint missions "might be used for the purpose of testing the technical requirements and solutions for compatible rendezvous and docking systems of Soviet and American manned spacecraft and space stations."

THE SUMMARY must be approved by the president of the Russian Academy of Sciences and the administrator of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the spokesman said.

McCloskey to run in New Hampshire

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., describing his appearance here as his "kickoff campaign," said Friday he will oppose President Nixon on the war issue in the New Hampshire primary next March.

"It didn't start out that way but, after looking at the candidates and the incumbent, I am gradually reaching the decision that I would like to be president," McCloskey said.

McCLOSKEY told about 100 students at St. Paul's school he will "try to convince people that their primary vote will do more to end the war sooner than anything else."

The New Hampshire presidential preference primary, traditionally the nation's first on March 14, will share the honor with Florida next year unless the New Hampshire Legislature advances it a week.

"This is no insult to Florida," McCloskey said, "but I would much rather campaign in New Hampshire. I feel I would find more sympathy here."

"We don't have the votes in Congress to end the war," he said. "Nixon will continue the war and the bombing until November of 1972."

"This war is being fought 70 per cent to save face, 20 per cent to contain the Chinese, and 10 per cent to salvage the Saigon government," he said.

McCLOSKEY also charged the Central Intelligence Agency with "running a covert war in Laos," and said he would get the CIA out of the business of toppling foreign governments.

Publication of the secret Pentagon study on the Vietnam war in American newspapers, he said, has "established in the public mind that in order to fight the war, the government has had to lie to the Congress and the public."

Publication of those documents is going to end the war a little sooner, McCloskey said.

"Certainly killed your lunch hour, didn't it?"

Nader raps Madison Ave. self-policing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader Friday charged Madison Avenue's self-regulation program would work only under government pressure, and warned that the White House appears to be resisting a federal requirement that advertisers substantiate their claims.

At the same time, White House consumer adviser Virginia Knauer had harsh words for some current television ads and said the advertising industry's self-regulation proposal should be tightened to eliminate "several drawbacks."

"I think we're all a little tired of seeing ponies and cougars sitting on cars in advertisements that really don't tell us much about the cars," Mrs. Knauer said.

And she said some current advertising is insulting to women, not only talking down to them but showing women who "appear to have a first grade intellect."

Nader and Mrs. Knauer testified at House Select Small Business Committee hearings on advertising regulation, including the National Advertising Advisory Committee's proposal for self-regulation.

Mrs. Knauer said the NAAC proposal would have only 10 consumers on a 50-member National Advertising Review Board, would regulate only national not local advertising and makes no provision for alerting the news media to disputed ads so it can make its own decision on publishing or broadcasting them.

She said she would not favor federal regulation unless self-regulation proved ineffective.

But Nader said that while "honest self regulation should be given a chance," it will work only if supplementary regulation by a government agency can impose legal sanctions and penalties.

He said the Federal Trade Commission has already taken action with a regulation requiring advertisers to substantiate their claims.

But he charged "it will only be a matter of time before the White House begins to look askance at this unaccustomed concern for the consumer."

Nader said President Nixon's communications director, Herbert G. Klein, has shown White House resistance to the FTC advertising directive by saying in a speech that he decries it as an attack on free press.

"Mr. Klein can only be suggesting that advertisers have freedom to make deceptive claims," Nader said.

Nader cited what he called a dozen examples of deceptive advertising, emphasizing the Ford Motor Co.'s advertising campaign against the air bag crash cushion, to support his contention that advertising self-regulation policies going back to 1910 don't work.

Nader contended Ford tried to discredit the air cushion to keep its seat belt and shoulder harness system in cars longer.

U.S. begins moves against building industry inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Friday announced its first moves to control inflation of prices and white-collar compensation in the construction industry, nearly three months after it began clamping down on wage increases for construction workers.

The limited price controls would apply only in cases where price increases were based on negotiated wage increases for blue-collar workers that were vetoed by the government. The government would require any resulting savings in wage costs to be passed along to the contractor's customers.

The proposed regulations, announced by Secretary George Romney of the Housing and Urban Development Department, would limit the total compensation of contractor executives and other white-collar employees to its 1968-70 ratio to field construction craftsmen or to white-collar employees of other industries in the same area.

For example, if a company vice president's salary, bonuses and other compensation during the 1968-70 period was 230 per cent of that of the average craftsman, that ratio must not be exceeded under the new regulation.

Romney is chairman of a nine-member, Cabinet-level interagency committee on construction created by President Nixon to develop ways to halt inflationary increases in construction prices and white-collar compensation.

U.S. cracks down on 'bargain' offers

WASHINGTON (AP) — How good a bargain is 5 cents off regular price? How new is an introductory offer? And just what is economy size?

The American buyer should be able to get solid answers to these questions beginning next year under rules published Friday by the Federal Trade Commission and the Food and Drug Administration.

THE TWO agencies, acting under provisions of the Fair Labeling and Packaging Act, issued the rules for food, drugs, cosmetics and household commodities, including packaged appliances.

Under the FTC rules, commodities offered with cents-off prices must have been recently sold at regular price, must in fact be a reduction in price, and must show on the package or label the regular price, the number of cents or dollars taken off and the new price.

The rules prohibit so-called introductory offers unless the product is new, has been vastly changed or is being introduced into a trade area for the first time.

The producer also must intend to sell the product at regular price "for a reasonably substantial period after the promotion."

Stronger economy seen by U.S. C of C

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Both the government and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce said Friday that the nation's economy was growing stronger.

The Commerce Department was cautious in predicting a continued upswing during the second half of the year, while the chamber's president, Archie K. Davis, forecast continuing though slow recovery from the 1970 slump, with some moderation in the rate of inflation.

The whole truth about tire prices.

Confessions of a price cutter.

At first glance, it looks like we give incredible discounts on new tires. We really don't. We give logical discounts on tires. It's the manufacturer's list prices that are incredible. Ignore 'em. No one gets mfr.'s list for tires. Everybody discounts. What's important to you is who discounts the most. First, go look at your car and write down your tire size. Now, find that size in our price charts. Take our price, add the federal tax as shown and 5% state sales tax. That's it. The total price, installed. No ups. No kidding around. That's the price we ask you to compare with anyone else's price. But if you don't see the kind of tire you want in this ad, call us. There's not room for all of our tires and prices here.

Michelin. Uniroyal. Bridgestone. Guardian.

Nothing but the best. With one exception, the tires we sell are better than the grade of tires that comes on new cars. That exception is the tires in the chart for "Imported Car Tires". They're first line, the same grade that comes on new cars. Otherwise, all our tires are Premium tires.

Cutting prices for fun & profit.

Our prices are lower than a shoplifter in a bargain basement. How do we do it? First, our guys know tires and the tire business like fish know water. Then, with five stores, we get the lowest possible prices from the tire companies. Our overhead is low because there's no absentee management. The man who changes your tires may own the joint. No one around here is afraid to get his hands dirty.

Electronic tire balancing.

There's only one right way to balance a tire. Take it off the car, mount it on the balancer, and spin it at high speed. The machine, one of our Hofmann or Schildmeier balancers, tells us where to add weight, inside and outside the rim, and exactly how much. We charge $2 a tire if you buy them from us. $2.50 if they came from somewhere else. Except mag wheels and truck tires. They're $3.50 each. The price includes all weights and labor plus a money-back guarantee. If you're not happy, bring the car back within ten days. We'll remove our weights, give you your money, and call it square.

Phone for reservations.

If you're in a big hurry, call before you come in. We'll keep a stall open for you and get to work on your car within five minutes after you roll in.

Grand Prix Closed Mon. & Tues. That's when we prune our roses.

Teen vote OK may be quickest Only 4 more states needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The constitutional amendment to let 18-year-olds vote is on the edge of record-quick ratification, well in time for millions of young people to cast ballots in 1972 elections.

Common Cause, which has been pushing the nationwide lobbying effort, claims the amendment definitely will achieve ratification, and soon.

Already 34 states have ratified the new voting age passed by Congress March 23. Only four more are needed to make it the 26th Amendment to the constitution.

For all practical purposes, it's down to three since both houses of the Alabama Legislature passed ratifying bills Thursday. Only the technicality of having the Senate approve the House version Tuesday remains to make it official.

"In North Carolina, where the state House already has passed the measure, the ratification bill was on Thursday's Senate calendar."

"I WOULD personally predict that we will get ratification by Labor Day," said John Gardner, chairman of Common Cause, a self-styled citizens lobby.

Ian MacGowan, who has headed the 18-year-old-vote project for Common Cause, thinks final ratification may be completed by the first week in July.

Common Cause strategists say a number of states are in position to complete the required 38.

Action is expected to be concluded in the Illinois legislature by the end of June. The ratification is beginning to move in the Ohio legislature where it has been reported out of a Senate committee. Senate action is expected by week's end, and House action in the next week or two.

Gov. Davis Hall has indicated he may call a special session in Oklahoma if needed to get the 38th state ratification.

The Utah Senate begins a session Friday and the House convenes the first week in August. Backers say ratification support is strong.

WISCONSIN ratified last Friday, raising the list to 34. Other states already ratifying are Minnesota, Delaware, Washington, Connecticut, Tennessee, Massachusetts, Hawaii, Montana, Arkansas, Iowa, Idaho, Indiana, Nebraska, Kansas, Michigan, Maryland, Maine, Vermont, Alaska, California, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Texas, South Carolina, West Virginia, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Arizona, Louisiana, Rhode Island, New York, Oregon and Missouri.

The first five states ratified on the first day of the campaign. The demands of legislative machinery have braked the thrust in some areas, but overall speed has been far above what was expected.

"People were saying you wouldn't have time to ratify it by the '72 elections," Gardner said. "It's really kind of astonishing."

The 12th Amendment, reforming the procedures for picking presidents and vice presidents, holds the record for quick ratification, taking eight months in 1803-1804 to win acceptance by 13 of the 17 states.

Senate panel OKs continued spending

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Appropriations Committee Friday approved a House-passed resolution to let government agencies continue spending at current rates into the new fiscal year starting July 1.

The so-called continuing resolution is needed because Congress so far has passed no appropriations for the new business year.

Herb Margolis heads Hollywood comeback

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) When Cecil B. DeMille and other film pioneers first invaded the orange groves of sleepy, dusty Hollywood they simply put a hand-cranked camera on a tripod and made movies.

They also made money. Today would-be DeMilles go to studios which sand-bag them with immense overhead costs, overload them with crews they don't need and charge them for office space — and keep the books.

They don't make money. Over-simplified, that's why movies are in the grip of economic strangulation. The studio system is, for the most part, archaic.

Independent producers find it cheaper, artistically more rewarding and certainly more exciting to return to the pioneer method.

PRODUCER Herb Margolis is an example. He created and wrote the "Ma and Pa Kettle" series of film along with those featuring Francis the Mule. He has other movie and video credits as well.

He just completed a new picture, "Lapin 360," (which will undergo a title change) on a budget so slender most studio moguls spill that amount on trips to New York.

He hired television director Robert Lewis and two unknown leads, Terry Kiser and Peggy Walton. Peggy has never made a movie in her life.

Margolis then rented a cinemobile, a self-contained studio on wheels, and went about making his movie on various locations in and around Los Angeles. Not a single scene was shot inside a studio.

"It's the only way to beat the system," Margolis said.

"I was given complete freedom by the men who provided the money for the picture. By way of thanking them we brought the picture in three days under schedule and considerably under budget."

Margolis and Lewis have returned to the simple principles of Lasky, Sennett and Roach.

"Our crew consisted of 25 men," said Lewis, "instead of the usual 50. But those 25 men worked full time. At a studio with 50 men half of them are doing nothing most of the time."

"I WAS going to shoot this picture in Vancouver," Margolis said. "But I want to be part of Hollywood's comeback. And there are no finer technicians in the world than right here."

"Also I'd like to prove that motion pictures don't have to cost a fortune these days. While we were shooting we constantly were forced to improvise. That's good. It's healthy and innovative."

THE hair dryer, the spokesman said, was used by George Masters for Lynda's new hairstyle for a party Hamilton threw for her at Grayhall in 1965.

The love seat used by Greta Garbo and Robert Taylor for a "tender scene" in "Carnegie" is offered, along with dozens of portraits in oil, including the last one of screen idol Rudolph Valentino, and an oil of Lady Spencer, great-great-grandmother of Winston Churchill.

Also included are gowns worn by such movie queens as Lana Turner, Hedy LaMar, Mae Murray, Miriam Hopkins and Vivien Leigh.

Lewis said, "there are television shows — not specials either — with larger budgets than we worked with. But the cast and crew were enthusiastic. And that's what made it all possible."

Now if "Lapin 360" has as many merits as the films made by oldtime pioneers, Margolis and Lewis may well be in the van of a bright new movie era. And the studios be damned.

Actor's things go on block

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Furnishings, art and apparel appraised at $450,000, from the 39-room Beverly Hills mansion formerly owned by actor George Hamilton, are being set up for auction there next month. They include a hair dryer said to have been used by Lynda Bird Johnson, the ex-president's daughter.

The property, contained in a 63-page inventory, belong to Hamilton, his mother, Anne Spalding, and Hamilton's brother, William.

The pieces were in Grayhall before the former Douglas Fairbanks estate was bought by financier Bernard Cornfeld.

THE auction will be conducted by Butterfield & Butterfield for three days starting July 19. The huge collection includes period furniture, portraits and antique goods, a spokesman said.

'WALKING IN SPACE'

The American highly successful tribal rock musical "Hair" is returning to the Long Beach Auditorium early next month for a short run. One of the highlights of the new international institution is the space sequence shown above. Tickets range in price from $3.75 to $6.50 and are on sale at the Long Beach Arena and all mutual agencies.

The Southland Movie Guide

As a guide to moviegoers this newspaper lists capsule contents of major motion pictures playing the Long Beach area. Most classifications represent the judgment of the Film Board of National Organizations.

PLAZA SUITE — Neil Simon's three comedies in one setting with Walter Matthau excellent as a middle-aged philanderer, a mod-wigged Hollywood producer, and the father of a reluctant bride. (GP)

THE ANDERSON TAPES — Sean Connery plays Duke Anderson, mastermind of a suspenseful million-dollar robbery at a New York luxury apartment house. Based on Lawrence Sanders' best-selling novel of crime and electronic surveillance. (GP)

PRETTY MAIDS ALL IN A ROW — Rock Hudson is a swinging counselor-football coach at a Southern California high school. A mixture of farce, satire and sex. (R)

LAWRENCE OF ARABIA — Peter O'Toole as Lawrence leads Arab tribes battling the Turks in World War I. Also stars Omar Sharif and Alec Guinness. Winner of seven Oscars. (G)

ZEPPELIN — Intrigue and drama in the creation of a super zeppelin to bomb London in World War I. With Michael York and Elke Sommer. (G)

LE MANS — Steve McQueen and a host of international racing car drivers roar off on France's thrilling and suspenseful 24-hour race at Le Mans. Excellent photography of the cars and crowds. (G)

SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL GUNFIGHTER — A post-Civil War comedy western with James Garner mistaken for a professional gunfighter and caught between two feuding families. Also stars Suzanne Pleshette. (G)

DR. PHIBES — A horror film with Vincent Price as a mad organist whose victims are diabolically cursed. With Joseph Cotton, Hugh Griffith and Terry-Thomas. (GP)

VANISHING POINT — An exciting 90-minute auto pursuit through four states as confused loner Barry Newman flees lawmen. (R)

VON RICHTHOFEN AND BROWN — World War I aerial combat is recreated in this drama about Germany's "Red Baron" and Roy Brown, the Canadian fighter pilot who shot him down. (GP)

THE LION IN WINTER — Oscar award-winner Katharine Hepburn as Eleanor of Aquitaine and Peter O'Toole as Henry II star in a lively slice of English history. (GP)

THE OWL AND THE PUSSYCAT — Tempestuous sometime prostitute Barbra Streisand and mild-mannered book store clerk George Segal meet and fall in love in an often

TORA! TORA! TORA! — The attack on Pearl Harbor is vividly recreated from Japanese and U.S. points of view. Spectacular battle scenes. (G)

LOVE STORY — Erich Segal's romance is touchingly portrayed by Ryan O'Neal as the Harvard youth and Ali MacGraw as the spirited Radcliffe girl. (GP)

PATTON — George C. Scott is excellent in humanizing the almost legendary swashbuckling figure of World War II Gen. George S. Patton. (GP)

ESCAPE FROM THE PLANET OF THE APES — In a Southland setting, Roddy McDowall and Kim Hunter recreate the simian roles they played in "Planet of the Apes." (G)

RYAN'S DAUGHTER — The awesome beauty of the Irish coastline is the background for a frail love

WOODSTOCK — Several hundred-thousand young people and their musical heroes are presented in this striking documentary of a unique music festival. (R)

Gardening

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Q — Could you tell me what ails my amaryllis? Last year they were lovely but this year they started to bloom in the crown of the plant without a stem. Or, if they have a stem they are very short distorted blooms. Should I have taken the bulbs up last fall? Would it be possible to have an article on amaryllis soon? Mrs. L. G. Satterlee.

A — Amaryllis, like any bulb, needs to be kept moist as it grows for longest possible flower stalks. Distorted flowers may be due to thrips damage. Those pests are thin and slightly long, but very small. They attack plants early in the morning, and again in late afternoon. Spray the soil, too, after having sprayed all parts of the plant. The necks of the amaryllis bulb should be about an inch above the soil line. Planted too deep could be a possible cause for short flower stems and poor blossoms. Yes, can do comments on amaryllis, one of the July issues.

Q — My two-year-old camellia planted in a redwood tub with good drainage had a few buds the first year then fell off. The leaves at the tips turned black and fell off. All new leaves coming out are starting to turn black at the tips. I don't water too much and fed it a camellia fertilizer. What is wrong? Robert L. Dahlberg.

A — The top of the camellia root ball should be level with the soil level. The trunk should not be smothered by the soil — assuming the soil is firm. If water immediately disappears into the soil, it is not firm and must be firmed. Container should be filled three or four times after each previous filling. This means the total fillings equals one, good thorough watering. Then no more until ten days later, assuming of course the soil was mixed with some form of organic matter that retains the moisture. Treat the plant after you have checked out and corrected what could be one or two of the possible causes I mentioned. The treatment may be one of the so-called "irons" to provide chlorophyll stimulation as well as acidification. If none on hand then get a soil conditioner-rinse that is acid to combat the alkali condition. Whichever you use, be sure to set the plant on the soil. Don't leave it on the patio floor, because either materials can stain the floor!

Q — This weed is growing in my neighbor's lawn. Now I'm at it in my dichondra lawn. Is there something that I can use to get rid of it, because it doesn't pull up too easily. Mrs. F. H.

A — The weed is knotweed. So far as we know the only herbicide you can use is one that sterilizes-inhibits the weed seeds, doesn't affect the weed itself. The herbicide is in dichondra turf fertilizer. You can obtain it by itself. The herbicide is one that sterilizes a number of grass weed seeds, plus small, broad-leaf weed seeds in dichondra lawn. Your nurseryman will know which herbicide I'm referring to.

BOOK OF 'ANNUALS'

"Annuals," detailing every aspect of choosing, planting and cultivating splashes of brilliance so indispensable in a garden, is the first volume in the Time-Life Encyclopedia of Gardening. Its April publication initiates the series, with subsequent volumes scheduled every two months. Author, James Crockett, draws from his experience as a landscape consultant, horticulturist and nurseryman to guide the home gardener in the techniques that insure gardening success. Annuals produce most blossoms and the healthiest flowers from geographic locations, soil conditions and the amount of sun and water received. Among topics covered, are how to sow and space seeds, caring for seedlings, how and when to pinch back for bushier plants and more flowers, staking and supporting, watering and mulching. There is also a section devoted to controlling insects and diseases, although — as the author points out — annuals are comparably immune to these problems. There is also guidance on how and when to start seeds indoors, propagation by cuttings and cold frames and hot beds.

Garden jobs

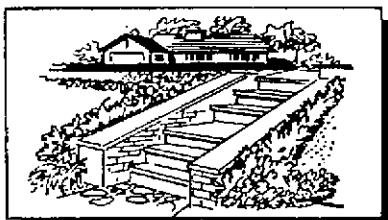

Pinch tips of basal canes of hybrid tea roses when they reach about 18 inches. This forces several secondary buds to sprout long canes with larger individual flowers. Canes that are not pinched grow many inches above the outline of the bush, then burst forth with half dozen or more very short stemmed roses which are too short for arrangements. Such growth is wasted, because the whole branch has to be cut back to shape the bush.

Hose spray, camellias, azaleas, and fuchsias. They like humidity. Camellias need deep watering when thirsty.

Spray the native sycamore again for the foliage blight. A suitable substitute for sycamore would be a linden tree. Willard Hagen an outstanding tree authority recommends lindens that grows along the coast.

Water roses in the forenoon as a deterrent against mildew.

BEGONIAS brighten a summer shade garden

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Begonias help to brighten a summer shade garden, whether they are rhizomatous rooted, bulb type, cane or fibrous rooted.

The most prevalent are the fibrous rooted because they grow faster and need less care.

The dwarf forms mound to about six inches, other looser types grow about eight inches while the sempiflorens to around 15 inches. Most of the blossoms are single, ball type flowers, and butterfly hybrids. An outstandingly attractive begonia is the richmondensis variety with pink and white flowers reminding somewhat of fuchsia blossoms. Most begonia blossoms are red, white, and pink, but the bulbous kinds — that are successfully grown along the coast — also are available in shades of orange and yellows.

The stiff branches of sempiflorens and richmondensis begonias can be forced to grow stockier if the gardener snaps off faded branches down to the secondary joints, or harvests the fresh blooming ones.

Begonias continue to bloom throughout the summer and well into fall. They can be grown also in containers. Smaller-blooming container plates can be used indoors among other plants for added color, or as a table decoration.

Soil must be humusy. Add organic matter to the soil, plus feedings for better growth and flower production.

TOMATOES produce a lot of blossoms, but unfortunately most of them drop off before they begin to form the fruit. Many barely-formed fruit drop off too.

Some gardeners have used a fruit-set hormone spray and have had fairly good luck helping the fruit to set and develop. Others using such a spray weren't happy with the results.

Personally, we've had much better luck with holding and ripening when we planted our tomatoes in late June.

Some years ago, a garden magazine subsidized a plant scientist to delve into the tomato — bud, blossom, and fruit drop. He conducted tests from San Diego to above Santa Barbara, by setting out plantings along the coast, inland, and in foothill areas. Months later the magazine published the results which were surprising and helpful. The tests proved, "tomatoes love hot weather and warm nights for bountiful crops."

A gardener friend learned that by planting tomatoes in six-inch diameter holes — and gradually filling in with soil — that it forced more root growth from the covered trunks, hence plants grew much hugger and better. Less frequent superficial watering also helps the plant grow best.

A farm advisor has recommended that treating the plants and soil with vegetable-tomato dust weekly discourages sap-sucking, and chewing insects as well as fungus.

Rhododendron capital

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Gov. Arch Moore has challenged a California city's claim that it, not West Virginia, is the rhododendron capital of the world.

In a letter addressed to John Judy, president of the Eureka Chamber of Commerce, Moore said:

"To save your city any undue embarrassment, I would advise you that you rescind your proposed statements . . . We have more rhododendrons growing on one mountainside than you have growing in your city."

Judy had written Moore claiming Eureka was the rhododendron capital of the world because 56 per cent of the city's homes and businesses had visible rhododendrons.

Moore invited Judy "to see the truth for yourself, in West Virginia."

HELP

In spite of a recent IPT article about our school for neurologically handicapped children, sufficient funds have not been accumulated to furnish the center. We need, but do not have, money for the following items: two record players, a tape recorder, two cassette recorders, a slide projector, three gymnasium mats, a ping pong table, a cot or daybed, tables and chairs, a desk, typewriter, file cabinet and office chairs. We also could use volunteers to help clear the acreage around our building. We are trying to help children for whom there are no special programs in public schools, since they are not crippled nor mentally retarded. Interested persons should contact Rose Yates at the Developmental Learning Center, 3808 Pine Ave., Long Beach, 427-4527, or 531-6556.

Haster faster

Q. Did our city fathers scuttle the Haster Basin project? P. J. S., Garden Grove.

A. No. In January the Garden Grove City Council approved $15,000 toward development of a park at the Haster Flood Control Basin. ACTION LINE learned from Garden Grove's assistant city manager Glen Reiser. Reiser said the project will be a joint effort by the city of Garden Grove and the Haster area residents, who have agreed to contribute labor, time and funds for the park development. Reiser said the city councilmen have had several meetings with residents and that two or three more gatherings are scheduled, to work out project details, before the actual work can begin. The proposed park will be near the intersection of Haster Street and Lampson Avenue.

Brand new

Q. I have a recipe from Scotland for shortbread and the recipe calls for three ounces of flour and three ounces of farola. Can ACTION LINE find out what farola is and where I can purchase some? M. L., Long Beach.

A. Farola is a brand name for a Scottish grain cereal for babies, according to a spokesman for the Scottish Imports Shop in Santa Monica. ACTION LINE contacted various food authorities and they suggested that you substitute an American baby food cereal or oatmeal for Farola which apparently is not imported in this area. A spokesman for the London Bakery and Imports in Long Beach also suggested that you might use rice flour in place of the baby cereal. She speculated that the purpose of the baby cereal might be to keep the bread from rising too much and rice flour will do the same thing.

Proof

Q. I took our dog to a rabies vaccination clinic on May 25 in Placentia. I was given a receipt there but have lost it. In order to get a dog license, I must have proof of rabies vaccination. Can you help me get a duplicate of the record? I can't seem to. Mrs. P. M. H., Anaheim.

A. The Southern California Veterinary Medical Association, 8383 S. Rosemead Blvd., Pico Rivera, Calif. 90660, has records of all rabies vaccinations given in public rabies clinics. They have mailed you a form and if you will fill it in and return it to them with $3 they will send you proof of the vaccination.

Stainless

Q. Can ACTION LINE find out how I can get brown stains off the insides of my dishwasher? I believe they are rust stains, caused by the iron in the water. Mrs. R. F. S., Lakewood.

A. There are several types of domestic rust removers on the market which will remove the stains, according to J. L. Smith, service manager for the Maytag Co., 1200 W. Eighth St., Los Angeles De Jong and Sons Hardware Co., 9826 E. Artesia Blvd., Bellflower, carries Rockwell Rust Remover and Bay Hardware, 215 Main St., Seal Beach, sells rust and corrosion removers by Flash-Brite. You can buy Sparks Rust Remover at Belmont Hardware, 5228 E. Second St., Long Beach.

that since the inception of the program about two years earlier enemy forces had grown, attacks and terrorism increased and more railroads were closed and highways cut.

"The pacification program has been stalled for years," he said one month later. "It is stalled today. The situation in this regard is no better — possibly worse — than it was in 1965, 1963 and 1961."

McNamara discounted as "grossly optimistic" a claim that the South Vietnamese had gained control of areas containing 1.5 million people during a 14-month period in 1965-66.

"It should be noted that about 30 per cent of the reported gains by the South Vietnamese government probably resulted from movement of refugees into cities and towns," he said.

McNAMARA told the President in an October memorandum that the enemy "apparently has adjusted to our stopping his drive for military victory and has adopted a strategy of keeping us busy and waiting us out."

"The infiltration routes would seem to be one-way trails to death for the North Vietnamese. Yet, there is no sign of an impending break in enemy morale and it appears that he can more than replace his losses by infiltration from North Vietnam and recruitment in South Vietnam."

"I believe we should consider terminating bombing in all of North Vietnam, or at least in the Northeast zones, for an indefinite period in connection with covert moves toward peace."

McNamara also proposed trying to split the Viet Cong from Hanoi, pressing contacts with the North Vietnamese and developing a plan to give the Viet Cong a role in negotiations and postwar life.

McNamara supported his view of the ineffectiveness of bombing with extracts from appraisals by the Central Intelligence Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency and the Institute for Defense Analyses.

Those reports indicated that the bombing of the north had no serious effect on supplies or morale.

In the November memorandum, McNamara took a more optimistic view of results of both the military buildup and the bombing in North Vietnam, the Post-Dispatch said.

IN November, McNamara wrote that introduction of large-scale U.S. forces "almost completely neutralized" the massive units of the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese. He also wrote that "the B52 and tactical air efforts have hurt enemy morale, produced casualties and disrupted his (the enemy's) operations and logistics operations."

Pentagon analysts who wrote the narrative history of the war said the reaction to McNamara's October proposals from the Joint Chiefs of Staff was "predictably rapid — and violent."

The Joint Chiefs contended that the McNamara memorandum did not take into account the "adverse impact over time of continued bloody defeats on the morale of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese army forces and the determination of their political military leaders."

The Joint Chiefs also called the air campaign against the north "an integral and indispensable part of our overall war effort." The narrative said the Joint Chiefs viewed the bombing as one trump card held by the President, which should not be surrendered without an agreement, such as "an end to the North Vietnamese aggression in South Vietnam."

The Joint Chiefs said presidential offers for peaceful settlement of the war "have been admirable" and that no one "can doubt the sincerity, the generosity, the altruism of U.S. actions and objectives."

"In the opinion of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the time has come when further overt actions and offers on our part are not only nonproductive, they are counterproductive," the Post-Dispatch quoted the narrative. "A logical case can be made that the American people, our allies, and our enemies alike are increasingly uncertain as to our resolution to pursue the war to a successful conclusion."

struction equipment — forced rescuers to halt operations for much of Friday.

Despite emergency portable lighting, thick smoke blackened the explosion scene inside the tunnel so that rescuers could only grope around. Portable oxygen supplies limited the stay.

Rescuers also had to slog for a half-mile through waist-deep water from spring leaks and firemen's hoses. A mine train was used to drive them to the tunnel's mouth.

Federal and state mine safety officials launched a probe into the explosion's cause — and whether it could have been prevented. Tunnel project officials have stressed that gas detection devices had been used and that the tunnel air had been certified as safe after a natural gas explosion had injured four persons only a day earlier.

Charles Leeper, an electrician who said he worked in the tunnel during the shift preceding the blast, said workers were "forced to back off on at least two occasions" because of "too much gas."

Newsmen cite war expose as defending public right to know

WASHINGTON — Writers, editors and publishers Friday defended publication of the top-secret Pentagon war study, on grounds they protect the public's right to be informed.

While not "privity to the inner councils where, I am sure, many considerations, including national security, were weighed before a decision to print was made," said J. Edward Murray, president-elect of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, "I am confident . . . that the men who made those decisions . . . are just as loyal, just as patriotic as any man in this room or in the White House."

THE RECORD of U.S. newspapers "in protecting national security is a distinguished one, especially in time of war declared by Congress," he added in testimony to the House government information subcommittee. Americans, he said,

"tend to put great faith in their President and what he says. When he plays false with the people as in the Vietnam war, and the newspapers report the truth, as they were doing in 1967 and 1968, the people tend to believe the president and disbelieve their newspapers."

"The resulting credibility gap is widened when other high officials of the government indulge in calculated and sustained charges of bias, distortion and untruth against the news media."

"I think our truth record in the Vietnam war is better than that of the executive branch, and I hope one by-product of publication of the McNamara papers will be to restore public confidence in the traditional axiom that you can believe what you read in your newspaper."

CHARLES A. Perlik Jr., president of the American Newspaper Guild AFL-CIO, said "once the public's right to know is abridged by governmental censorship of the press and denial of information to its elected representatives, two consequences are inevitable, both of them equally disastrous to a free society."

"We become, to the extent of that abridgement, less of a representative democracy than we profess to be. And the credibility of the press, and, more importantly, the government itself, is destroyed."

In cases where government must classify some of its papers against disclosure, Perlik said, "particularly in matters involving the national defense," the system should be "narrowly defined and responsibly applied" and must include periodic review and declassification.

Secrecy stamps have been applied unnecessarily on some documents and mistakenly on others, "and the government has not been above using classification to attempt to 'manage' the news," he added.

Richard Kleiman, reporter for The Minneapolis Tribune and chairman of the freedom-of-information committee of the Sigma Delta Chi professional journalistic society, said a government practice of "prior restraint is the essence of censorship."

IN A RELATED development, the board of directors of the National Association of Broadcasters adopted a resolution saying "it is essential to an open free society that all media be free to present to the public any and all information without being subjected to prior governmental restraint."

The board also adopted another resolution backing Frank Stanton, president of CBS, in his refusal to give a House subcommittee subpoenaed material involved in producing the CBS documentary "The Selling of the Pentagon."

NEWSDAY said it obtained information about Johnson's memoirs from publishing industry sources. Titled "The Vantage Point: Perspectives of the Presidency," the Johnson book is to be published in November by Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

The Newsday article said Johnson approved McNamara's recommendation on March 17, 1964, to prepare U.S. forces for a "program of graduated military pressure against the North." However, it said Johnson said he did not agree to air strikes until February 1965.

Other published portions of the Pentagon study said there was a consensus within the administration in favor of air strikes during the 1964 election campaign period.

Historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr., who served as an adviser in the Kennedy and Johnson administration, referred to the bombing decision in an interview in which he said "the press has leaped to conclusions which outstrip the evidence."

"If you read the documents, the documents don't prove" the bombing was approved by Johnson during the election campaign, Schlesinger told the Westchester-Rockland Newspapers, a nine-member group in New York City suburban area.

"All they prove was that he was advised to that effect," he said. "I've seen no evidence that Johnson had made any decision to bomb North Vietnam until well after the election."

Among the revelations attributed to the Johnson book and reported by Newsday in the article, signed by Brian Donovan:

—President Johnson decided to follow President John F. Kennedy's policy of defending South Vietnam's sovereignty as he flew back to Washington after Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas, Tex., in 1963;

—He approved on March 17, 1964, a recommendation from Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to prepare American forces for "program of graduated military pressure against the North"; —In pondering increased military presence in Vietnam during 1964, Johnson says: "I had moments of deep discouragement, times when I felt the South Vietnamese were their own worst enemies. The South Vietnamese seemed to have a strong impulse toward political suicide."

—Robert F. Kennedy volunteered during the 1964 presidential campaign to go to South Vietnam as U.S. ambassador.

—In reflecting on his Vietnam policy, Johnson wrote: "As I left the Presidency, I knew not everything I did about Vietnam, every decision I made about it, had been correct."

Aaron Asher, a vice president at Holt, Rinehart and Winston, where the book is now largely in galley form, said the publisher was considering legal action against Newsday.

Salary, work load State colleges lose their lure

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

As top professors are lured away from Cal State-Long Beach by offers of better pay and working conditions, their colleagues who stay become restless.

While they remain, they'll be aware, concerned because a growing number of fellow professors felt the time had come to get out.

And they'll talk about it, and think about it for themselves.

It's logical, a junior administrator tells friends over coffee, because nobody here is making any money. For example: Carl McIntosh, who quit as CSLB's president in 1969 to become president at Montana State, now makes more money than Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke.

From his office on the lower campus, Dr. C. Thomas Dean, dean of the school of applied arts, tells a telephone caller that, in academic circles, "the word is out back East, up North; don't go to California."

"I don't think I've heard a single soul say that if money is restored to the governor's budget proposal, he won't veto it again," says Dean, head of a campus group which works to better relations with area residents.

DEAN PREDICTS for the caller that Cal State-Long Beach, at its present rate of decline, will literally grind to a halt — "It's not more than a couple of years off."

SECOND OF TWO PARTS

In the high-rise faculty office building on upper campus, Dr. Owen Jensen, 39-year-old associate professor of speech communication, considers the fate of the department he helped create.

Dr. Jerry Mandel, considered "irreplaceable" in the department by Jensen, is leaving for a new job at Kent State University, where he'll make $9,000 more per year than he earned last year at CSLB.

"I'm glad I didn't have Mandel's decision (on a job offer) to make this year," he said. "I think I would have answered the same."

Jensen admits he is growing unsure of the attitude he's carried through previous lean years: "I'm a patient man. Education is bound to take an upswing. It'll pass."

When he came to California six years ago, Jensen recalled, he chose to work at Cal State-Long Beach because "they were just starting this program and it was wide open. To me it was a tremendous opportunity."

"BUT THE state colleges have moved down from one of the top 10 systems in the country to the bottom quarter," he said. "It's mediocre at best."

"I sometimes have the feeling that those who are in power in California are against progress of any kind," he said. "Many college people I know think of the chancellor as the governor's lackey."

The college's problems — and the seed planted in his mind by Mandel's leaving — have Jensen blue-printing his own move, but he knows he can't leave now.

By tradition, the state colleges accent classroom teaching, while the University of California system emphasizes research and publication by its faculty members.

But, Jensen said, once a state college faculty member ceases to do research and publish — even though no time or funds are allotted for it — he is in trouble on two counts:

—He becomes a forgotten commodity on the national educational job market because his name does not appear in trade journals; —And he runs the risk of being considered a "poor teacher," unworthy of promotion, simply because his research and writing are measurable, while his actual teaching ability usually is not assessed."

After his first three years at CSLB, Jensen said, he lost touch with the "job market" by not doing research, and has not since tried to reestablish his reputation.

"Besides, I'm fundamentally a teacher, not a researcher," he said, "and this system does give you the opportunity to be in the classroom."

"I LIKE teaching. I like working with students. I think my job as a teacher isn't so much in research as it is in telling everything I know," he said. "I know most other teachers here feel the same."

"New people are told, 'what's most important is how good a teacher you are,'" explained Jensen. "But when you get in, you find people don't know how good a teacher you are — maybe don't even care."

"In reality, we expect our new men to do research. But there are no facilities, underwriting or encouragement to do it," he added.

The demand for published evidence of competence in a teacher's field is created by Retention, Tenure, Appointment and Promotion committees, usually composed of faculty from the teacher's department, said Jensen.

"I don't want to blame my colleagues. They do the best job they can. I sat on RTA&P, and it's tough. How are you going to judge a man's presence in the classroom?" he asked.

"We rarely have reason to visit another man's class. From the instructor level on up, you're mostly on your own."

Because these committees have no way to judge a man's ability to pass on knowledge, he continued, RTA&P groups often fall back on the number of campus committees a teacher has served on and other ways he has served the college or the community.

Sheriff helicopter patrol cut in half to save funds

By LARRY LYNCH
Staff Writer

The Los Angeles County sheriff's department is cutting its helicopter patrol program in half to continue providing service to Norwalk, La Mirada and Pico Rivera at no increase in cost.

The cities of Downey, Whittier, Santa Fe Springs and Commerce are dropping out of the ARGUS (Aerial Reconnaissance Ground Unit Support) program effective July 1, when existing contracts expire.

SGT. STUART Hansell of the sheriff's community services office said that the program has been trimmed as follows: from four helicopters to two, which will patrol singly, one on eight-hour day shift and one on eight-hour evening shift; and from six pilots and six observers to three of each.

Sgt. Hansell explained that each of the cities planning to continue participation would receive about the same number of hours of helicopter patrol. The area to be patrolled is down from 100 square miles to 50 square miles. Estimated costs to the participating cities were arrived at Friday. These are:

Norwalk, $85,946 for the 1971-72 year, compared with $70,242 this year; La Mirada $26,674 for '71-72, compared with $26,674; and Pico Rivera $48,674

L. B. - Catalina tour ship to be christened

The new 500-passenger cross-channel ship Long Beach Prince will be dedicated today and will begin daily runs Monday to Catalina Island.

The 132-foot, $750,000 motor vessel will be christened at 11:30 a.m. by Mrs. Mary Wade, wife of the mayor, as part of the ceremonies marking the 60th anniversary of the founding of Long Beach Harbor.

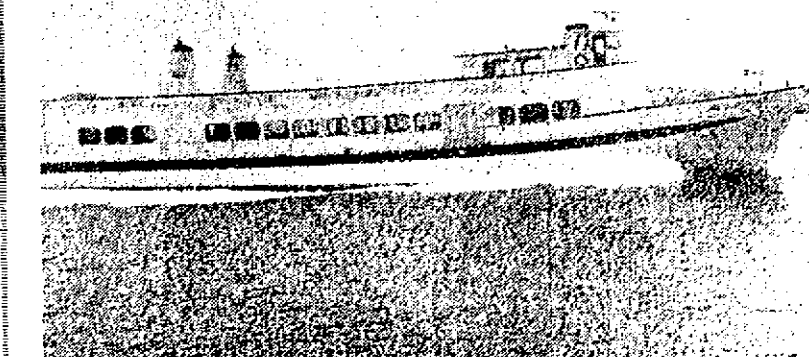

Long Beach-Catalina Cruises, operator of the ship, will take a group of VIPs on a harbor tour, then will take members of the general public on a short, free trip around the port from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

About Thursday, the ship will start afternoon harbor tours in addition to the Catalina schedule. It also will be available for charter trips, according to Mike Barone, general manager of the company.

The double-decked ship, completed and certified this week, has a glass-enclosed lower deck and a partly enclosed upper deck.

The Prince, along with two sister ships, will operate out of the company's terminal at 700 Panorama Dr. at the foot of the Long Beach Freeway.

Delay seen in Bolsa Chica beach fixup

By DON ROBERGE
Staff Writer

Parking and restrooms for Bolsa Chica State Beach are at least a year away, and possibly much longer, despite the state's purchase of land for those purposes earlier this week.

Harmon Rowe, supervisor of special studies for the State Parks and Recreation Department, said Friday the improvement funds are not included in his department's fiscal 1971-72 budget request. The money "probably" will be requested for 1972-73, he said.

Pending engineering studies, the department does not know how much will be needed, he said.

Preliminary plans call for most of the 100-foot-wide, three-mile-long strip to be used for parking space. With the remainder devoted to restrooms and concession areas. At present, beach users park on the highway shoulder, next to 55-mile-per-hour traffic.

The acquisition, announced Wednesday by Gov. Reagan, doubles the width of the former "Tin Can Beach."

Originally the Pacific Electric Railway right-of-way on the seaward side of the Coast Highway, the land was purchased from the Southern Pacific Railroad Co. and the Bolsa Chica Corporation for $3.8 million. It totals 36.5 acres, stretching from just north of the Huntington Beach city limit to Los Patos Avenue in Sunset Beach.

Funds for the purchase were appropriated in 1966 under the 1964 State Beach, Park, Recreation and Historical Facilities Bond Act.

Longer Queen Mary tour hours over Fourth

The hours for the public tours on the Queen Mary will be extended into the early evening for the three-day Fourth of July weekend, officials of the Museum of the Sea announced Friday.

Ticket booths for the tours will be open from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m. on Saturday through Monday, July 3-5. The regular hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. will be resumed on Tuesday, July 6.

Late-hour participants on the Fourth of July will have a good vantage point on the Queen Mary for the city's annual fireworks show, which will start at 9 p.m. The display originates from the area just south of Long Beach Auditorium, a few hundred yards across the water from the Queen Mary.

Museum officials said the public tours, which recently went onto a seven-days-a-week schedule, have attracted more than 200,000 visitors since they opened May 8.

Admission for the tours is $2 for adults and $1 for juniors, aged 5 through 17 years. Children under 5 years are admitted free. Parking is $1 per car.

Senior pastor on age, parents and motor gifts, Synod hassle touching all bases in three sentences.

By LES RODNEY

Rev. Dr. Hodge MacIvahn Eagleson, sprightly and innovative 76-year-old pastor of the Senior Citizen church at Third and Linden, while dropping by here the other day commented on the retirement of a certain 65-year-old, and snorted characteristically:

"It makes as much sense to say that a man can't BEGIN his work until he's 65 as to say he has to stop at 65."

He sounded as though if you pushed him a bit on it, he might even say it made MORE sense.

When I phoned the church later in the day to get Dr. Eagleson's age for this item, I was treated to a free concert through the phone receiver. One of his young-at-heart choirs was singing up a Tuesday afternoon storm. Sounded terrific.

HOW ALIVE is the Consultation on Church Union (COCU) designed to unite nine major Protestant denominations? Here's what Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church, had to say recently: "COCU is still a live issue. A whole lot depends on the response to the plan during the next two years. Many are happier with intercommunion rather than structural union."

You might call that

HAS THE noise from those little motored monstrosities roaring up and down the street disturbed your Sunday mornings? Don't blame the kids. But what can parents be thinking about buying these things for sub-teen boys who should be using their legs and young muscles in play, rather than sitting on their seat and opening a throttle. (Not to mention endangering their life and that of others, and contributing unnecessarily to air and noise pollution!)

Aside from these physical factors, pity the kid with parents thoughtless enough to buy him such a costly "toy" at a time of life when he has not EARNED anything for himself. Because Johnny, down the street, got one.

It's much easier to buy expensive things for kids than to be real parents, it often seems.

A CONVENTION "workbook" published in advance of the July 9-15 meeting of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod to be held in Milwaukee, reveals that one of the major issues will be dissatisfaction with the altar and pulpit fellowship with the more liberal American Lutheran Church.

Adopted in 1969, the fellowship agreement allows pastors to preach from the pulpits and members to commune at the altars of the other Lutheran church body.

Though a few resolutions recommend that the convention "reaffirm" and "give thanks" for ALC fellowship, over 150 resolutions are opposed.

Why? For some Synod conservatives, a big obstacle is the ALC approval of the ordination of women last year. Others disapprovingly cite ALC membership in the World Council of Churches and in the Lutheran World Federation, which is strong on social action.

The anti-ecumenical feeling, reversing a trend of recent years, is also expressed in resolutions running 5-1 against membership in the Lutheran Council in the USA, a cooperative agency serving the LCMS, ALC and Lutheran Church in America.

Feeling of the petitioners is that the ecumenical ties tend to pull the Missouri Synod away from its own theologically conservative posture.

The president, Rev. Dr. J. A. O. Preus, a staunch conservative himself, is understood not to share these fears. Young Luther Leaguers can also be expected to back the altar and fellowship arrangement. They tend to be impatient with separatism.

But petitioners against it will find plenty of support from many pastors and the broad center of typical Missouri Synod worshippers, those who keep the church going.

It could be a battle.

NOTE FROM Rev. John Nicholls Booth, who left Long Beach Unitarian Church in January. During May, he was visiting minister of the Community

Church of New York, largest Unitarian-Universalist congregation. During one sermon on Buddhist and Gandhian non violence, broadcast over a New York radio station, Booth made negative references to the armament industries of the U.S. and of Israel.

He relates: "It brought two threats to blow up the church, presumably from the Jewish Defense League, because of the Israeli reference. Quite a hassle ensued. First of its kind in my experience as a result of a sermon."

The church's publication, The Community News, in a notice on his farewell sermon, said, "He has lived up to his reputation of being controversial."

Dr. Booth, who still resides in Rossmore, flew back to Boston this week to conduct the memorial services for novelist-playwright James Ramsey Ullman, a fellow mountain climber.

AS THE old saying goes, the grass always looks greener...

Protestant ministers who feel a gap between themselves and their congregations on some issues may have sometimes envied what seemed to be the closer knit, controversy-free life of rabbis and their congregations.

Well — the Central Conference of American Rabbis, meeting recently in St. Louis, was told by its president that growing tensions between congregations and rabbis are harming synagogue life.

Blame was placed on both sides, but large emphasis was put on "efforts made to diminish the moral and Jewish capability of rabbis... (who) can in such circumstances be-

Inquisition film debuts free in Anaheim Center

"Flame in the Wind," a gospel film dealing with the Spanish Inquisition in the 16th Century, will be presented Tuesday in its West Coast preview at the 8,000-seat Anaheim Convention Center, sponsored by more than 100 evangelical churches in the Southland, with no admission charged.

The full length color film was produced by Unusual Films, the cinema division of Bob Jones University, with more than 1,000 students participating. The plot is said to be built around historical events surrounding the Inquisition's repression of a secret Protestant group in Seville in 1550.

Bob Jones, known for his Shakespearean roles and holder of the award for the best Christian film actor of 1964, portrays the Inquisitor General. Bob Jones 111 appears as Fernando, smuggler of the Scriptures to the Spanish people.

Sends Viet combat pay to church

"Here is my combat pay for a month which was given for helping kill people in Vietnam. Please use it to help people to stop some of the feelings and beliefs of mankind which allow us to kill each other."

This message and a money order came from John F. Watts of Glendale to the United Methodist Board of Missions, and was given to the Many Races Cultural Foundation for work carried on by the "Martin Luther King Hummole" at St. Gregory's Church in New York. Watts, a U.S. serviceman, sent his month's pay for $65 to First United Methodist Church of Glendale, which forwarded it to the Board of Missions.

FUN PROGRAM FOR KIDS AGAIN AT 1ST LUTHERAN

First Lutheran Church will begin its sixth annual summer recreation program Monday for area children ages 5-14. The popular and successful program, to which all are welcome, runs from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday, till July 8th.

Included, says Director Jim Shepherd, are crafts, a Queen Mary tour, picnic, family night, sports, movie day, and daily snacks.

The church school is located at 845 Linden Ave.

DR. FRANK COLLINS

We here at Calvary want to express our appreciation to all those who helped make our Anniversary Sunday a success. More than 2,000 people attended our special services throughout the day. Our Sunday school attendance was more than 1600.

We attribute the expansion of our ministry to the blessing of God upon a church that it true to His Word. Our purpose is to reach as many as possible with the Gospel of Christ. With a vision that is not blurred by a troubled society, we intend to remain true to the New Testament Pattern of Evangelism.

If you are looking for a church that has vitality in its program and Christ in its preaching, come to Calvary. This Sunday we hope to complete the present Sunday School Quarter with an average of more than 1300. Because Christ is alive, our church is not dead.

Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!

HAIR AND THE BIBLE

'Jesus People' wrong, Scriptures condemn unisex look, pastor says

ED NOTE: Last week, we quoted the Hollywood Free Press, a paper of the so-called "Jesus People," which said "The Bible doesn't tell you to cut your hair or what kind of clothes to wear." We asked whether any Bible student cared to comment. Here is the response of Rev. Donald P. Shoemaker, youthful pastor of Los Altos Brethren Church.

Dear Sir:

I am 26 and do not consider myself a traditional-ist, but I am a biblical literalist, which I am sure the "Jesus People" would also claim to be. With their contention regarding hair and clothing I must take exception.

As to clothing, Moses wrote "The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man, neither shall a man put on a woman's garment, for all that do so are abomination unto the Lord thy God" (Deut. 22:5). A noted commentator refers to this passage as a "warning against a violation of the natural order of things" and states that the divine distinction of the sexes was to be sacredly observed. Thus, unisex clothes are out, and what belongs on a man does not belong on a woman, vice versa.

In I Timothy 2:9-10, the Apostle Paul writes regarding women's apparel. It is to be "orderly," that is, always in good taste and consistent with God's plan for womanhood and with the inward attitudes of "modesty" and "sobriety." Thus, a woman's attire is to testify to an inward sense of natural shyness and reverence for her body. She recognizes her body as the dwelling place of God's Spirit, and she notes the natural bent of the man to be aggressive — and dresses in respect to these two facts.

As to hair, again the Apostle writes in I Corinthians 11:14-15, "Doth not even nature itself teach you, that, if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him? But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her. We are left to define "nature" and "long," and I think the context helps us well. "Nature" is not custom, culture, or even Mother Nature. The use of this word in Scripture requires us to define it as the nature within man, given by God, which prompts him to perform as a product of God's creation in a way God intended (see what men do when they act contrary to nature: Romans 1:26-27).

Since God created a basic distinction in the sexes he expects a distinction to appear in many ways, including hair length. "Long hair" (literally, "to let the hair grow") is shameful because it indicates that the person has stepped out of his role God intended for him. Likewise, short hair is shameful to a woman, for she indicates that she has stepped from her role. "Long" would have to be defined contextually as "that length which is normal for a woman."

TEENS TO PASTOR WITH LOVE

Dr. Bob Wells, pastor of Central Baptist Church in Anaheim, one of California's largest, received a Father's Day surprise when Terri Lee and Gary Pippenger presented him with a plaque and resolution of appreciation for his spiritual leadership, for the 220 members of Central's Varsity Youth Dept. Sunday School attendance has been running over 2,000 this year at the church, 227 N. Magnolia Ave.

'Witnesses' not rebels'—leader SO, BAPTIST, JEWS JOIN IN PLEA TO RUSS

Jehovah's Witnesses do not advocate civil disobedience, the Southland supervisor of the sect, Angelo C. Manero Jr., said last Sunday at the three-day circuit assembly in Los Angeles.

"Jehovah's Witnesses do not promote the 'establishment' but do not rebel against superior authorities," he said. "If God permits them to rule, why should any Christian interfere with what they are doing, even if a person disagrees with that government, why should he join in a riot or share in civil disobedience?"

Suggesting the proper view of government, Manero added: "It is a good thing to show proper respect for the governments and appreciation for the beneficial services they perform. In these respects the 'superior authorities' show themselves to be God's 'public servants,' providing services that benefit his people."

The resolution, adopted at the second annual national Southern Baptists and Jewish scholars conference, began by affirming that "Baptists and Jews share much in common both in rich spiritual heritage and in historical experience" in fighting for political and religious liberty.

EVANGELISTS

Rev. Don Parker and his wife Sharon, popular musical evangelistic team, will be at Calvary Light Assembly, 2004 Cherry Ave., at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sharon plays the cordevox, which imitates 28 instruments.

The usual Methodist shakeup following annual conferences at Redlands finds five area churches preparing to bid farewell to their pastors (or senior ministers as Methodists prefer) this Sunday, and welcoming new ones a week later.

Los Altos United Methodist, Long Beach's largest in the denomination, at Willow and Woodruff, says goodbye to Rev. David H. McKeithen, who moves to Escondido church in northern San Diego County.

Replacing the popular Mississippian will be Rev. Russell R. Robinson, who has just completed six years as district superintendent in San Diego.

Prior to that, Dr. Robinson, 50, a native of Minnesota, was senior minister five years at Fullerton First. Old timers at Long Beach First may recall that back in 1948-50 he served as an associate minister at the downtown church.

He took center stage at Redlands last week as spokesman for 10 district leaders in denouncing extremist opponents of social concerns in the church.

Robinson was educated at San Diego State, Southern California School of Theology and University of the Pacific.

REV. STANLEY C. Brown, youthful-looking dynamo who held forth for eight years at Grace, moves to the Southern California-Arizona Conference's largest church, Catalina of Tucson, with approximately 3,500 members.

Replacing him at the round-domed church at Third and Junipero will be Rev. Raymond L. Wirth, 51, who moves down from the San Luis Obispo church.

A native Californian, born in Modesto, Wirth was schooled at Manchester College of Indiana, La Verne College and USC School of Religion, and also has a certificate from the American Institute of Family Relations. South Pasadena, Orange, East Whittier and Cucamonga, sounding like an old railroad timetable, are other pastorate he held down.

He spent 10 years in the business world before entering the ministry, served in the South Pacific during World War II, and is an avid fisherman and backpacker.

OTHER AREA changes: Rev. Kenneth L. Doctor leaves Belmont Heights church to take over Community Church of Leisure

In a "straight swap," Rev. Gary Van Boening of Dominguez and Rev. Myron E. Stump of Azusa exchange pastorate. At San Pedro First, Rev. John Atwood leaves for a San Diego ministry, replaced by Rev. Marvin A. Johnson, from Point Loma church in that city.

Rev. J. Marvin Davis takes over at Seal Beach church, replacing Rev. Clyde Ervin.

Confident living

Joe Frazier and the away to start

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

"You can do anything you want to do if you really put your heart and soul and mind into it." That's something I believe for sure and I've said so many times. But that quote isn't mine. It's Joe Frazier's, world heavyweight-boxing champion.

Recently Joe Frazier addressed the South Carolina Legislature. He was the first black man to do so since the Reconstruction Era a century ago. A victim of poverty and injustice, Frazier was born and raised in the lower coastal region of South Carolina. He had to leave school after the ninth grade and worked as a laborer on South Carolina farms.

Joe Frazier decided he wanted to do more with his life. It wasn't easy. When he started boxing he worked at two jobs to support his wife and children. Then he had to learn, and it was hard work. "But," said Frazier, "if you put your right foot in front of you and the left behind, somebody will give you a hand."

THIS III told the South Carolina joint assembly as he stood before them a few months ago. At the conclusion of his speech, Frazier was given a huge standing ovation. He had come a long way from his boyhood life on Beaufort farms. Joe Frazier has what it takes. And so do you if you believe you can do it.

Your life is going to be no better than your attitudes are. Actually we create our lives out of our attitudes — how we react to people, situations, and things. A wonderful life isn't given to you by any magical means. You create it out of the way you think and the way you react. A French author once said, "Life is what our character wants it to be. We fashion it as a snail fashions its shell."

Some years ago, I went to a radio station to record talks on positive thinking. But the fellow who put these talks on the air was one of the most negative men I have ever met! He was always complaining gloomily about everything. For one thing, he hated his job. And he disliked his boss. He spent a lot of time telling me how terrible things were. "If I could only find another job, I'd get out of here tomorrow and I don't mean maybe," he would say.

But he never did anything about it except complain to me and everybody else. Well, this rather got to me, for here I was talking about positive thinking week after week, and this fellow kept complaining negatively about how awful things were. Finally I asked, "Bill, don't you ever listen to these tapes on positive thinking that we are putting on the air?"

"Of course I do. I have to listen to them. That's my job."

"Well," I said, "everything you say is so terribly negative. Don't you want to live a better life than that?"

"Sure," he replied, "but

that's impossible in this job."

"If you don't live an upbeat life here," I answered, "you'll never live it anywhere else. You've got to face the situation right where you are and think positively about things. You'll be surprised at the difference it will make."

As time passed Bill became manager of a whole chain of radio stations. His positive, happy spirit was infectious and motivated his associates. He attacked situations creatively and got results.

Family school

Vacation Bible School continues Monday, Wednesday and Friday next week at 7 p.m. in Immanuel Lutheran Church, 345 Carson St., all grades through eighth, with adults invited to hear pastor-counselor John Stendahl at the same time.

Park evangelism featured in women's forum

A slide presentation of the evangelistic work being done in the summer program of the California Parks Ministry will be a feature of the monthly forum of Church Women United, to be held Friday in Atlantic United Methodist Church, 1535 Atlantic Ave.

Coffee time at 9:30 will start things off. The slides of California's natural beauties will share the program with special recognition to all key women. The program is open to all.

Attacks 'evangelical hucksters' on China

A prominent evangelical leader who knows the Orient warned this week against "evangelical hucksterism" in regard to China.

"I have never doubted that God could save China from Communism," declared Dr. Stan Mooneyham, president of World Vision International, in the current issue of World Vision Magazine. "I just hope that when He does, He can also save her from well-meaning, but blundering American evangelical opportunists."

Local youth picked for YFC Europe tour

Ed Boss, a 1970 graduate of Jordan High, has been chosen by Youth for Christ International as one of seven Americans in a traveling folk group which will tour Norway, Denmark and Germany this fall.

A former Press-Telegram carrier, he was active in Key Club and played varsity tennis at Jordan. This past year he was named the outstanding freshman at the University of Redlands. He is the son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Charles Boss (pastor of North Long Beach United Methodist Church).

Young Boss will join six others next month in Wheaton, Ill. for a month of training before leaving in August.

He urges Western Christian leaders to have the humility and courage to ask the churches in Asia, "May we be your partners in evangelism and help provide some of the money and some of the men?"

Does Christian Science really heal?
Yes, it does. But no advertisement can fully explain it.
You have to read about it and prove its practical and reasoned approach for yourself.
Healing in Christian Science means much more than just physical release. It means an improved character. Release from wrong. A newfound understanding of God, and yourself.
You're always welcome at our Sunday and Wednesday services.

Faculty lure dims

With the "60-40 rule" levying a quota on the number of teachers who can hold full or associate professorships — and therefore higher pay — RTA&P actions often have led to cutthroat departmental infighting.

"Sometimes," added Jensen, "out of necessity, you just have to count the number of times a teacher's name appears in professional journals to judge him."

"So, because they have to have these tangible yardsticks on their record, State College teachers research and write. But the system just isn't geared for it. These teachers are probably carrying the heaviest class load in the nation he said."

"When I come up for promotion, I'm not sure dedication to teaching will be measured," said Jensen.

"In my whole life, I've seen only two men promoted because they were good teachers. They were both at Purdue. One of them was counseling 160 students at one time outside his classroom work," he said.

Students and faculty assessed those teachers' abilities, he added.

Jensen is scheduled for promotion to full professor next year. "Although I don't like doing it," he said, "I'll probably have to do my job and that's it. Just try to write. No committee work."

"And if I have to, I'll just kind of coast, leave my classes as they are for a year. If the situation doesn't improve around here the next year, I'll just have to go."

"I THINK a man wants pride in his work, and if you can't have it, you do something else. If you're young and mobile, you get out. Or you crash out some articles or books to make yourself marketable."

"If you're locked into the system, not marketable, you sort of give up. Spend long hours at the beach or in the mountains. Or drink yourself into oblivion."

"What's happening now is we're losing a lot of bright, young guys," Jensen said. "If raises and some other budget things are blue-penciled by the governor, then I think you'll see a lot of the people in my position getting out."

Irvine Co. sues

The Irvine Co. late Friday filed a $1-million lawsuit against the City of Santa Ana, claiming a lawsuit filed by Santa Ana to enforce its annexation rights to 938 acres of Irvine industrial land had "standered and clouded the company's title to the land."

The Superior Court action, filed in Santa Ana, came three weeks after the city had filed its suit to block a proposed incorporation of 18,500 acres of the ranch land as the City of Irvine. A hearing on this suit is set for July 6.

Santa Ana's lawsuit claims that under a 1963 agreement the Irvine Co.

guaranteed Santa Ana's right to annex the industrial land. The Irvine Co. asserts that it is no longer owner of all the property involved in the 1963 pact, so cannot control it.

Records show, however, that the company still retains title to about 70 percent of the disputed industrial land, which has been included in the boundaries of the proposed new city.

dead at 89; rites slated

Services will be Monday at 11 a.m. in Mottell's Chapel for Tacie Widdis, widow of the late Judge Albert L. Widdis, and an active clubwoman. Mrs. Widdis, of 445 E. Ocean Blvd., died last Monday at the age of 89.

A native of Vinton, Iowa, and graduate of Coe College, she first came to Long Beach as a winter visitor in 1914, and came to stay in the early 1920s. She was a long-time member of the American Association of University Women, Ebell Club, Lawyers' Wives Guild, Covenant Presbyterian Church, and was a leader in behalf of the Red Cross.

Mrs. Widdis is survived by no known relatives, but many friends.

First time ever.

All-new from Chrysler-Plymouth,
who gives you more new cars to choose from than anyone else.

Now offering the newest entry
in the small-car field.

Plymouth Cricket.
The little car
that can.

Chirp. Chirp.

Happy day! Plymouth comes through with the little car that can. Which means you can, too...

Have more fun. Get good economy. And have certain nice things you can't have in some of the other import-sized cars. Because we've taken some extra steps.

We made our new Cricket a four-door, and gave it the kind of tender lovin' engineering care we put into all our cars.

At a sacrifice of economy? No way. Cricket's priced down at $1915.*

To sacrifice fun? Just the opposite. We've expanded it. Gone to four doors, with safety locks to keep kids in. No climbing over other passengers. No lifting packages over the front seat. Everybody's happy.

You park Cricket like the little car it is; ride in it like the bigger car it isn't. You get good gas mileage from its thrifty Four.

You get power disc brakes in front—standard. Long-lasting radial-ply tires. A big 14 cu. ft. trunk.

You can choose from an optional automatic or manual transmission. Plus, there's an optional trim package to spruce things up.

If nothing else, depend on this: Cricket is Chrysler-engineered, Chrysler-built—and that can make all the difference.

Plymouth Dealers'.

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price for a Cricket. Price excludes state and local taxes, destination charges, and suggested dealer new-car preparation charges. Whitewalls shown are $28.65 extra.

Play dead in S.F., win in L.A., 5-4 Thanks, Pads, you bums!

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

There they were, the lowly San Diego Padres, rolling over five times in a row at San Francisco last week while all the Dodgers could do was shake their heads mutter a curse and lose valuable ground to the Giants.

"Yeah, but you wait," the Dodgers' manager, Walter Alston, warned at the time, "wait'll they play us. San Diego always plays us tough."

Unfortunately, the manager was a sound prophet.

The pesky Pads, the same club that blew a four-run lead in the ninth at San Francisco, this time stormed from behind in the ninth, to upend the Dodgers' Friday evening, 5-4, before 40,388 Ball Night fans at Dodger Stadium.

It's the third time in four games San Diego has prevailed at the Big O, this time preventing the O'Malleys from slicing a game off the Giants' lead in the National League West.

The deficit is still eight games although Preston Gomez, the Padres' skipper, isn't quite sold on the Giants despite his recent five-game reverse at Candlestick.

"When the Dodgers get healthy again they'll give the Giants a good run," consoled Gomez, the friendly Cuban who was an aide to Alston for four seasons. "If the Giants lose the big guy (Willie McCovey) they're in trouble. And the way he played against us I can't see how he can play too much longer."

The words were warming but hardly satisfying to Alston who, after seeing the Padres wipe out the Dodgers' advantage with a ninth-inning rally, snorted, "We beat ourselves. We didn't deserve that one. They got 14 hits, we got seven."

Most of the manager's hostility was directed at Pete Mikkelsen, a reliever of quality who had pitched his last seven games, a span of 14 innings, without yielding a run.

But Pistol Pete was gunned out in the ninth when San Diego peppered him for two singles and a double, the most damaging a one-out single by Dave Campbell that came after Mikkelsen purposely walked Angel Bravo to load the bases.

It was just a check swing by Campbell who admitted afterward he was fooled on the pitch.

"Mikkelsen gets two strikes on Campbell keeping the ball down, then he throws one up here," observed the manager, waving at a delectable area around the chest.

The inning was launched when Bob Barton singled and Larry Stahl drilled a pinch double. Bravo got the walk and Campbell the key single to score the tying and winning runs before Jim Brewer marched in to whiff the dangerous Clarence Gaston and Nate Colbert.

The Dodgers, who had trailed since the second when the Padres' Ivan Murrell and Ed Spiezio shocked rookie Bobby O'Brien with home runs back-to-back, got to left-hander Dave Roberts for two runs in the seventh on a bases-loaded single by Manny Mota.

Bobby Valentine and Joe Ferguson singled after one out and Bill Grabarkewitz walked. Roberts got Maury Wills to pop out but Mota looped a single to right, scoring Valentine and Ferguson for a brief 4-3 advantage.

Roberts is the left-hander the Dodgers coveted in pre-season talks but Gomez said there only was one serious offer. He also said he wouldn't swap him at all now, describing him as money and national ranking today when Hollywood Park presents the Ford Pinto Invitational Turf Handicap at a mile and one-half.

'Big three' vie at Hollypark

Incensed over what he termed Johnson's "jackassical play and bad attitude," Phillips again consigned the temperamental leftfielder to the Angel bench — the fifth time he has done so this season.

"If it had been up to some of the other players, especially the pitchers, he would have been out of the lineup long ago," the manager said.

The absence of Johnson did little to inspire the Angels. They accumulated only six hits off winner Tommy John and Bart Johnson and went down, 2-0, at the hands of the Chicago White Sox. It was their third shutout loss in four games, their seventh defeat in 10 during the trip and their 13th setback in the last 19 games.

Chicago scored both its runs in the first inning to make Tom Murphy a nine-game loser and run its winning streak to five games, longest of the season.

"You can just assume I am dissatisfied with his play," Phillips said of the latest Johnson benching. "Although he has driven in some runs for us, he has

Adair on Band of Angels Charger Bar is choice in Derby

When Robert Adair decided to ride Band of Angels in the Derby Trials last week, James Dreyer was given an excellent opportunity to ride the probable favorite in this evening's $90,000 Los Alamitos Derby.

His mount, Charger Bar, posted the fastest clocking in the Trials with a 21.7 performance for 440 yards and, in winning the first heat, bested Band of Angels by 1¼ lengths. That was the only time that Adair hadn't ridden the Tiny Charger filly, marking the second week in a row that Adair made the wrong move.

A week earlier, Adair chose to ride Kaweah Bar instead of Band of Angels in the $10,000 Shue Fly. You know the rest — Kaweah Bar was fourth and Band of Angels was an easy winner. But Adair will be out to prove he made the right move in taking Band of Angels for the Derby.

THE THREE-TIME national riding champion will be seeking his third successive Los Alamitos Derby triumph, having scored with Kaweah Bar and Miss Three Wars the last two years.

Dreyer will be after his second Derby win, having taken the 1965 edition with Go Josie Go. Charlie Smith, who rides Miss Little Bid tonight, had captured the Derby four times — Jet Deck in 1963, Goetta

"Sometimes," added Jensen, "out of necessity, you just have to count the number of times a teacher's name appears in professional journals to judge him."

"So, because they have to have these tangible yardsticks on their record, State College teachers research and write. But the system just isn't geared for it. These teachers are probably carrying the heaviest class load in the nation he said.

"When I come up for promotion, I'm not sure dedication to teaching will be measured," said Jensen.

"In my whole life, I've seen only two men promoted because they were good teachers. They were both at Purdue. One of them was counseling 160 students at one time outside his classroom work," he said.

Students and faculty assessed those teachers' abilities, he added.

Jensen is scheduled for promotion to full professor next year. "Although I don't like doing it," he said, "I'll probably have to do my job and that's it. Just try to write. No committee work."

"And if I have to, I'll just kind of coast, leave my classes as they are for a year. If the situation doesn't improve around here the next year, I'll just have to go."

"I THINK a man wants pride in his work, and if you can't have it, you do something else. If you're young and mobile, you get out. Or you crash out some articles or books to make yourself marketable."

"If you're locked into the system, not marketable, you sort of give up. Spend long hours at the beach or in the mountains. Or drink yourself into oblivion."

"What's happening now is we're losing a lot of bright, young guys," Jensen said. "If raises and some other budget things are blue-penciled by the governor, then I think you'll see a lot of the people in my position getting out."

Irvine Co. sues

The Irvine Co. late Friday filed a $1-million lawsuit against the City of Santa Ana, claiming a lawsuit filed by Santa Ana to enforce its annexation rights to 936 acres of Irvine industrial land had "slandered and clouded the company's title to the land."

The Superior Court action, filed in Santa Ana, came three weeks after the city had filed its suit to block a proposed incorporation of 18,500 acres of the ranch land as the City of Irvine. A hearing on this suit is set for July 6.

Santa Ana's lawsuit claims that under a 1963 agreement the Irvine Co.

guaranteed Santa Ana's right to annex the industrial land. The Irvine Co. asserts that it is no longer owner of all the property involved in the 1963 pact, so cannot control it.

Records show, however, that the company still retains title to about 70 per cent of the disputed industrial land, which has been included in the boundaries of the proposed new city.

Tacie Widdis dead at 89; rites slated

Services will be Monday at 11 a.m. in Mottell's Chapel for Tacie Widdis, widow of the late Judge Albert L. Widdis, and an active clubwoman. Mrs. Widdis, of 445 E. Ocean Blvd., died last Monday at the age of 89.

A native of Vinton, Iowa, and graduate of Coe College, she first came to Long Beach as a winter visitor in 1914, and came to stay in the early 1920s. She was a long-time member of the American Association of University Women, Ebells Club, Lawyers' Wives Guild, Covenant Presbyterian Church, and was a leader in behalf of the Red Cross.

Mrs. Widdis is survived by no known relatives, but many friends.

Guns, radio, gems stolen from home

Burglars who broke in through a locked living-room screen took a tape recorder, a radio, an adding machine, guns and jewelry worth $940 from the home of Glenda J. Linderman, 2830 E. 68th St., Long Beach police said Friday.

First time ever.

Chrysler-Plymouth,
who gives you
more new cars
to choose from
than anyone else.

Now offering
the newest entry
in the small-car field.

Plymouth Cricket.
The little car
that can.

Chirp. Chirp.

Happy day. Plymouth comes through with the little car that can. Which means you can, too...

Have more fun. Get good economy. And have certain nice things you can't have in some of the other import-sized cars. Because we've taken some extra steps.

We made our new Cricket a four-door, and gave it the kind of tender lovin' engineering care we put into all our cars.

At a sacrifice of economy? No way. Cricket's priced down at $1915.*

To sacrifice fun? Just the opposite. We've expanded it. Gone to four doors, with safety locks to keep kids in. No climbing over other passengers. No lifting packages over the front seat. Everybody's happy.

You park Cricket like the little car it is; ride in it like the bigger car it isn't. You get good gas mileage from its thrifty Four.

You get power disc brakes in front—standard. Long-lasting radial-ply tires. A big 14 cu. ft. trunk.

You can choose from an optional automatic or manual transmission. Plus, there's an optional trim package to spruce things up.

If nothing else, depend on this: Cricket is Chrysler-engineered, Chrysler-built—and that can make all the difference.

Plymouth Dealers'.

There they were, the lowly San Diego Padres, rolling over five times in a row at San Francisco last week while all the Dodgers could do was shake their heads mutter a curse and lose valuable ground to the Giants.

"Yeah, but you wait," the Dodgers' manager, Walter Alston, warned at the time, "wait'll they play us. San Diego always plays us tough."

Unfortunately, the manager was a sound prophet.

CHICAGO — Lefty Phillips invoked his revolving-door policy with regard to Alex Johnson Friday night.

Meanwhile, general manager Dick Walsh arrived in Chicago and immediately invoked the fifth amendment.

Incensed over what he termed Johnson's "lackadaisical play and bad attitude," Phillips again consigned the temperamental leftfielder to the Angel bench — the fifth time he has done so this season.

'Big three' vie at Hollypark

The "big three" of American turf racing — Cougar II, Drumtop and Fort Marcy — and Divide and Rule, a brilliant New Zealander bidding to make it the "big four," will battle for $125,000 in purse for the first time.

Divide And Rule is the "unknown quantity." He was very impressive in winning the one-mile Lakeside Handicap, but jockey Laffit Pincay Jr. may have a tough time conserving the New Zealander's speed.

Nine horses were entered in the third running of the testing event, but the four high weights, headed by Cougar who will carry 127 pounds, are expected to battle for first prize of $68,750.

Their presence in the lineup makes the invitational handicap race run so far this year.

Fort Marcy, who carried the Rokeby Stable silks to victory in the 1969 Invitational and who captured horse-of-the-year honors in 1970, is racing's only active equine millionaire, but he may be no better than third choice when the field goes postward.

Cougar, owned by Mary F. Jones, is a Western favorite who earned his high weight assignment with victories this year in four major stakes, including the $125,000 San Juan Capistrano and the $138,000 Californian. He'll have Bill Shoemaker in the saddle and is the probable public favorite.

Adair on Band of Angels Charger Bar is choice in Derby

When Robert Adair decided to ride Band of Angels in the Derby Trials last week, James Dreyer was given an excellent opportunity to ride the probable favorite in this evening's $90,000 Los Alamitos Derby.

His mount, Charger Bar, posted the fastest clocking in the Trials with a 21.7 performance for 430 yards and, in winning the first heat, he bested Band of Angels by 1¼ lengths. That was the only time that Adair hadn't ridden the Tiny Charger filly, marking the second week in a row that Adair made the wrong move.

A week earlier, Adair chose to ride Kaweah Bar instead of Band of Angels in the $10,000 Shue Fly. You know the rest — Kaweah Bar was fourth and Band of Angels was an easy winner. But Adair will be out to prove he made the right move in taking Band of Angels for the Derby.

THE THREE-TIME national riding champion will be seeking his third successive Los Alamitos Derby triumph, having scored with Kaweah Bar and Miss Three Wars the last two years.

Dreyer will be after his second Derby win, having taken the 1965 edition with Go Josie Go, Charlie Smith, who rides Miss Little Bid tonight, had captured the Derby four times — Jet Deck in 1963, Goetta

The 'Kingfish' gone at 52

He was affectionately known as The Kingfish and Ken-bones and he was a holy terror carrying and throwing a football.

It took a lot of gang tackling to stop Kenny Washington when he was leading the UCLA football team to its first national prominence in 1957-58-59.

Much later, it took years to bring him down for keeps.

Kenneth Stanley Washington, 52, lost his fight against a disease that crippled his heart and lungs Thursday night at the UCLA Medical Center. He had been an in and out patient there for what Kenny once said, "As long, it seems, as I can remember."

Last year more than 1,000 friends attended a testimonial dinner at the Hollywood Palladium for Kenny. Dignitaries of the sports and entertainment field, government officials and a lot of just little people jammed into the place.

They'll all be back Tuesday morning when funeral services will be held at the Holman Methodist Church on West Adams.

Washington was regarded as a better baseball prospect in college than his esteemed teammate, Jackie Robinson. But it wasn't until 1950, when he was 31, that he got his first shot at major league ball. Leo Durocher of the then-New York Giants gave him the chance. It came too late.

Washington became the first black man in 13 years to play in the National Football League. The late president of the Rams, Dan Reeves, signed Kenny as one of his first moves after bringing the Rams here from Cleveland.

Revson, Donohue battle for pole

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — Pete Revson and Mark Donohue, the hottest qualifiers at Indianapolis a month ago, renew their battle for pole honors today when time trials open for the July 3 Schaefer 500-mile race.

A field of 33 starters will be decided in two days of qualifying. The prestigious pole spot for the $430,000 race will go to the driver having the fastest four-lap 10-mile speed the first day. He also stands to collect about $8,000 in cash and awards.

Donohue, the 32-year-old engineer-driver from Media, Pa., consistently has been the fastest driver in a week of shakedown runs over the 2.5-mile, triangle-shaped Pocono International Raceway, though Revson was the first to break the 170-mph barrier.

Revson was the surprise winner of the Indianapolis pole, clocking a record 178.696 mph. Donohue, who had turned the fastest laps, had to settle for the No. 2 spot at 177.087.

Both Revson and Donohue drive British-made McLaren cars powered by 800-horsepower Offenhauser engines.

New hockey loop seen as NHL rival

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — An organization known as the World Hockey Assn. has been formed with the intention of operating as a 14-team major league of professional hockey starting in the 1972-73 season, the Hollywood, Fla., Sun-Tattler reported Friday.

The Sun-Tattler said it has learned that prime movers in the organization are Gary Davidson of Santa Ana and Dennis Murphy of Miami, Fla., who were both among the founders of the American Basketball Assn.

The newspaper said the league intends to compete against the National Hockey League for talent and already has granted franchises to groups in Los Angeles, New York, Miami, Honolulu and Milwaukee.

The Sun-Tattler said the organization has been incorporated in the state of Delaware, but that its headquarters would eventually be in Los Angeles, although for the present it will operate from Davidson's law office in Santa Ana.

Applicants for league franchises are required, the newspaper said, to post $25,000 in earnest money plus a $200,000 bond, and give evidence of having $2 million to invest in addition.

Close battles in U.S. Pan Am rowing trials

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — A pair of closely fought boat races, including a dead heat, highlighted the U.S. rowing trials for the Pan-American Games.

In the pairs without coxswain, the University of Washington and the New York Athletic Club "B" boat both were clocked in 7 minutes, 16.4 seconds and earned places in today's finals.

Other repechage (second chance) heats in the pairs without coxswain were taken by the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia in 7:14 and Rutgers University in 7:18.7.

The other tight battle came in the fours without coxswain as a University of Pennsylvania shell nipped a Vesper-Penn combination by six-tenths of a second in 6:47.2. In the second heat, the Union Boat Club of Boston and UCLA finished a half boat-length apart.

In the pairs without coxswain, a shell from Orange Coast College, Costa Mesa, and the Vesper "A" boat were the top two finishers in one heat and the Rochester, N.Y. Boat Club and Vesper "B" ended 1-2 in the other.

The top two finishers in the pairs and fours with coxswain advance to the finals.

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The Jim Plunkett-led West is rated a touchdown favorite over the East in tonight's 11th annual Coaches All-America football game — the early summer opener of the 1971 gridiron campaign.

Plunkett, the strong-armed Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, has the most impressive credentials of the quarterbacks on hand.

While West coach Bob Devaney of Nebraska has two of 1970's finest passers, East coach Charley McClendon of Louisiana State will be depending on his own Buddy Lee and Alabama's Scott Hunter for ball control.

"I hope our offense gets tired," McClendon says. "We want to keep the ball and then the West won't be able to score."

Such tough runners as Joe Orndun of Nebraska and Bo Cornell of Washington and clutch receivers such as Ernie Jennings of the Air Force, J. D. Hill of Arizona State and Bob Moore of Stanford adorn the West squad.

The main ground threats for the East include Mike Adame of Northwestern, Mickey Zofko of Auburn and Dave Brumgard of Alabama.

Rex Kern, Ohio State's fine quarterback for three years, will be stationed at defensive back for the East in an effort to harness Plunkett and Chuck Hixson.

Ch. 5 catches up with summer

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

Ch. 5's summer schedule goes into effect Monday, shifting times for Steve Allen and Virginia Graham and adding some other features.

Allen's show moves to 8:30 p.m. and Miss Graham's program shifts to a 6 p.m. start.

A "Wide Screen Theater" featuring horror films ("Dracula," "Frankenstein," etc.) will air from 7 to 8:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"Can You Top This?" comedy-quiz show returns to the channel airing each weekday from noon to 12:30 p.m. "One Step Beyond" is scheduled from 5:30 to 6 p.m., daily, and will be followed by the 5 p.m. news.

Starting at 1:30 today, Ch. 5 will begin a series of weekend showings of Thailand and Japan kick-boxers — six-ounce gloves and barefeet are the weapons.

CH. 7 begins daytime runs of "Love, American Style," vignettes at 12:30 p.m., Monday, replacing the cancelled "A World Apart" which had its last showing Friday.

FORMAT and content of a new reading series for 7 to 10-year-olds, created by the producers of "Sesame Street," will be discussed at 4:30, today, on Ch. 28.

The hour show, featuring Joan Ganz Cooney, president of Children's Television Workshop and others involved in the production to start airing on KCTV Oct. 25, will be repeated at 5:30 p.m., Monday and 10 a.m., Tuesday.

NBC has announced that it will present six "Children's Theater" specials on its Saturday morning schedule next season.

The specials will be prepared by Shari Lewis, who is currently taping a show with her Hush Puppy puppet; David A. Tapper, who produced "Circus Town" last season; and June Reig who produced last season's "Pets Allowed" and "A Day with Bill Cosby."

These specials will be aimed at youngsters up to 7-years-of age.

The network also has in production a weekly information-entertainment program, "Take a Giant Step," for the 7-14 age group.

While waiting for next season, Ch. 4 will air "The Wonderful World of Jonathan Winters," a "Children's Theater" repeat, 9 a.m. today.

AND FOR the big buys, Ch. 4's "The Jazz Show" at 11:30 tonight features singer Carmen McRae, the Bobby Bryant Quintet and the Sonny Criss All-Stars. Billy Eckstine hosts.

In the general area of musical offerings, Ch. 28 at 10 p.m., Sunday, repeats

"Welcome to Fillmore East" on its "Fantasy" show. Featured are the Byrds, Van Morrison, Albert King, Sha-Na-Na and the Elvin Bishop Group.

Bill Graham, founder of Fillmore East and West, is closing both theaters, effective today, because of "rising production costs and increasing difficulties in dealing with rock acts and audiences." The show was taped last September.

Musical-variety on Ch. 5 at 7:30 tonight features "The Trini Lopez Show," with Nancy Ames and "The Ventures."

Sex bias job rules by FCC

WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission announced Friday it proposes to add a sex-discrimination provision to its equal-employment rules.

Station operators with five or more employees now are required to assure equal employment opportunities to Negroes, Orientals, American Indians and Spanish-surnamed Americans. Now, the FCC said, it proposes to add sex-discrimination to the list.

The action was taken in response to a petition by the National Organization for Women NOW.

Avco plans 'total living'

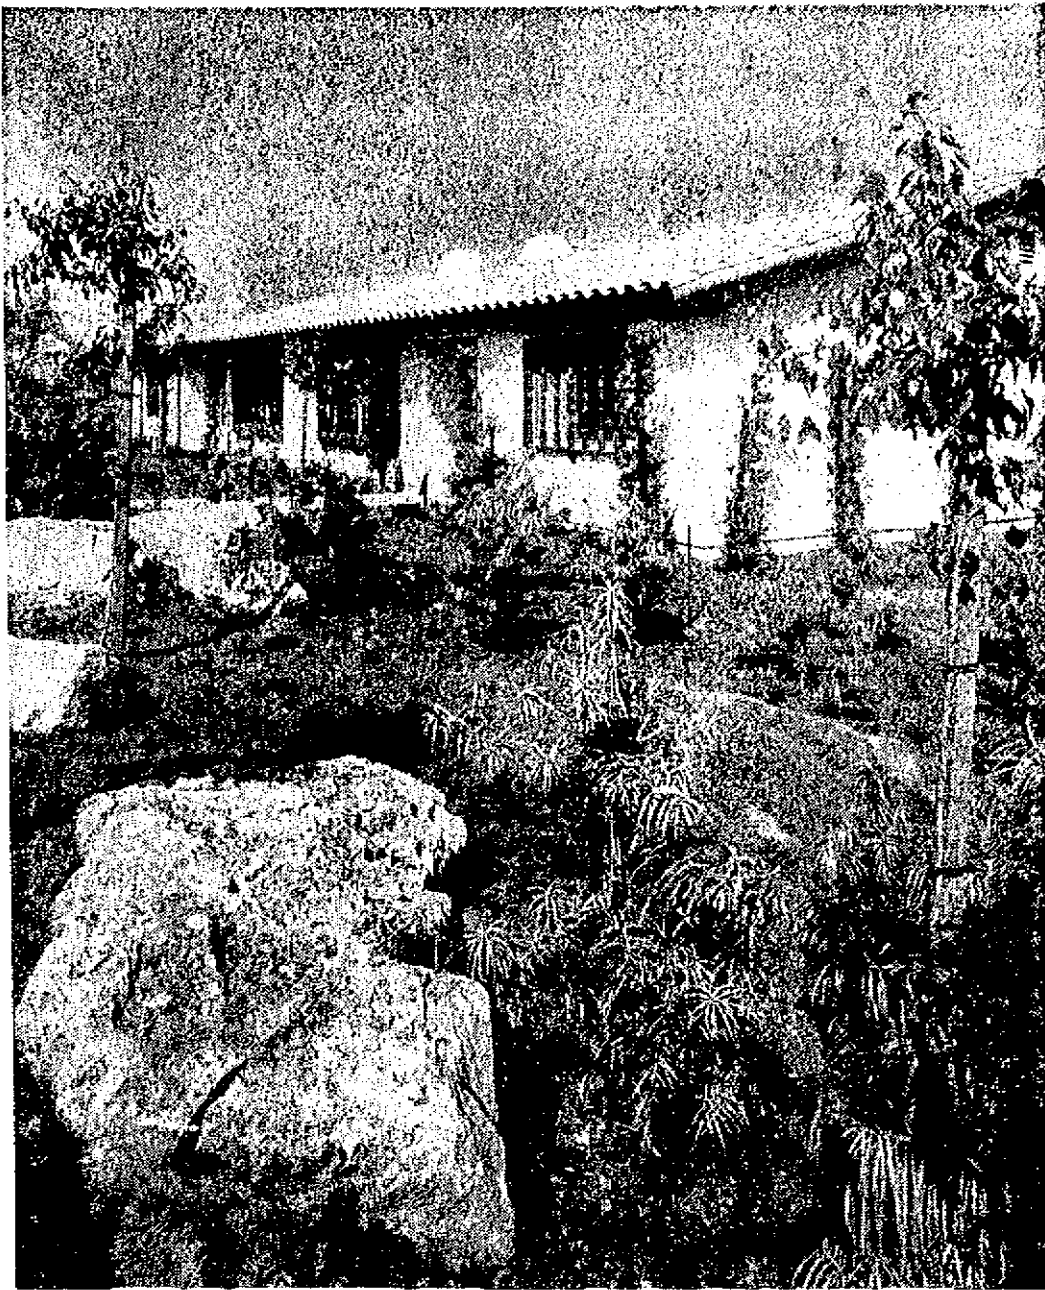

Avco Community Developers, Inc. is rapidly bringing to fruition its "unlimited" life-style concept to Laguna Niguel, its 8,000-acre new town just south of Laguna Beach and stretching seven miles from the Pacific Ocean inland to the San Diego Freeway.

Richard L. Weiser, executive vice president, says "Laguna Niguel represents ACD's latest approach in development of total concept living. Embodied here is great care in planning the 'marriage' of the living environment to the land."

As a result, a wide variety of home styles to fit the widest range of life styles are included in plans for Laguna Niguel. When ACD purchased Laguna Niguel, in October, 1970, about 3,000 acres of the rolling land already had been developed.

At that time the development included 1,700 homes, three shopping centers, an industrial park, El Niguel Country Club, a private beach club, Orange County Re-routes on which the truck, barge and airfreight operators move their cargo.

(NOTE: This is the second of two columns on the problems of America's railroads. The first, which appeared in last week's Progress Section, examined the plight of the railroads. This column presents the industry's proposals.)

NEW YORK — The two major problems of railroads are regulation and money. The first, though not unique, has a peculiar application to rails. The second is common to all industries in very serious trouble.

In 1969 it cost the rails 24 per cent of revenues to provide basic right-of-way facilities. For truck and buses the figure was under 5, for airlines 4, for barges nothing.

THE SECOND PROBLEM: Because the railroads are unprofitable, they are forced into greater unprofitability. That is, since they seldom can borrow at prime rates they cannot fix their equipment to operate at maximum efficiency.

The past haunts it. When memories of its greed recede into history, the history books remind a new generation. And stiff regulations, passed at the turn of the century when the industry was a monopoly, continue to be applied.

"We ought to stop subsidies for all transportation modes," said George Smathers, the former U.S. senator from Florida, and now general counsel for "America's Sound Transportation Review Organization," acronymed ASTRO.

would be in the form of a subsidy. It ought to be stopped when it is evident the railroads can make a profit."

Won't they fight to maintain that subsidy, he was asked? "Of course they will," he said. "But it should be looked at every three years, and when the time comes that the railroads are a viable enterprise, then no more subsidy."

Regulations. "We don't advocate total deregulation. But we want to be able to raise rates up to 6 per cent a year, which then could be turned back after ICC hearings."

Smathers also advocates legislation that would permit lines to quickly lower rates to meet competition, but not so low as to be below cost.

Also among the industry's goals is creation of a national freight car corporation as a semigovernment agency to assure shippers of enough cars, permission for experimentation with intermodal transportation companies, and a single regulatory agency to govern all transportation uniformly.

Will these solve the problem? The public is obviously dubious, but after the Penn Central Transportation Co. debacle, it is listening more closely.

It has to, because if anything has been thrashed out sufficiently to be agreed upon, it is that the railroads are essential. What hasn't been clarified is management's role in the problems and its responsibilities in the future.

Do railroads need subsidy?

The first problem, as seen by the industry:

In order to abandon unwanted, parallel lines, a railroad must petition the Interstate Commerce Commission and the state public utilities commission, a process that can consume six to eight years.

Even to lower fares, a rare occurrence, as much as three years is needed. Less regulated competitors, such as truckers, can lower rates immediately and take away business.

Furthermore, the government heavily subsidizes the

This cycle is having inevitable consequences. The rate of return on investment dropped to 1.76 per cent last year, the third lowest in 50 years and the worst since 1938. Four lines are bankrupt, a dozen more close to it.

These are among the arguments presented in Washington these days by representatives of the industry, once powerful and arrogant, now weakened, frustrated and fearful of its life.

But Smathers qualified his statement. "It ought to stop," he said, "but if the taxpayer is going to be called upon to subsidize airlines, trucks and barges, why not do something for the railroads?"

SUCH A FUND the railroads could use in order to upgrade their roadbeds and terminals. "The maximum package needed to bring them up to par would be $500 million a year for 10 years."

As a subsidy? "Some would be repaid. Some of it

Big Canyon means luxury

BIG CANYON — a new concept in luxury residential development which makes it possible for residents to live, work and play in a private community in the shadow of the Newport Financial Center — opens Sunday in Newport Beach.

Two years in the planning by The Irvine Company, the $60 million project will be to Orange County what Bel Air is to Los Angeles, Frank Hughes, Irvine vice president in charge of residential development, said at a press preview.

The principal unifying element of the community is the newly opened Big Canyon Country Club golf course.

"The tree-lined fairways, containing six man-made lakes, wind their way through Big Canyon, serving as a vast green belt for the community. And most of the development's homesites have vistas onto the private membership course," Hughes said.

The initial residential phase of the 390-acre project will contain 68 homes, built by Richard B. Smith, Inc., in the $75,000 to $100,000 range. Four model homes, located on Braeburn Lane, near the intersection of San Joaquin Hills Road and MacArthur Boulevard, will be open Sunday.

Interest rates bottomed, look for new hikes--Tenzler

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business-Real Estate Editor

Interest rates on government-insured mortgages are expected to follow the recent prime rate rise.

A spokesman for one of the state and nation's largest housing producers believes the rise will come "within the next few weeks."

He is Michael L. Tenzler, senior vice president of The Larwin Group, Inc., of Beverly Hills, a subsidiary of CNA Financial Corporation.

"Many prospective homebuyers have been waiting to purchase a new home with the impression interest rates had not bottomed out," Tenzler said.

"It appears, unfortunately, that nothing could be further from the truth at this time, despite an ample supply of available mortgage money."

One indication is the recent increase in the conventional interest rate to 7½ per cent, or even 7¾ per cent, up from 7 per cent.

"Furthermore, the Federal National Mortgage Association received record bids at a recent special auction, which indicates an increase in the FHA-VA interest rate to at least 7½ per cent is imminent," Tenzler said.

As further substantiation, Tenzler cited the increase in "points" charged by lenders for making the loans. A point is a one-time payment equal to one per cent of the loan which is paid by the seller of a home. This increase affects the builder, who must absorb the cost.

"Points in some areas of the country have risen to as much as eight percent from a normal base of less than three per cent," explained Tenzler. "This kind of dramatic increase forces the seller to adjust his prices upward to pass along a portion of the added expense. Hence, the increase in points is another sign that rates are surely upward bound."

Tenzler also noted that spokesmen for several associations, including FNMA and the National League of Insured Savings, have requested publicly an increase in the FHA-VA.

"These factors, coupled with other cost increases in the price of new homes anticipated at a rate of six per cent annually, should indicate to the prospective homebuyer that there is no better time to buy a new home than the present," he said.

New housing coming

South Coast Development Corporation of Tustin has announced it will be responsible for all phases of planning, development and sales of over 1,800 dwelling units in two planned-unit residential developments valued at $42 million in Escondido and San Juan Capistrano.

Up to $1.5 million will be initially invested by U.S. Development Corporation, Northern California-based subsidiary of First Builders Bancorp.

Preliminary plans call for some 350 garden homes and townhouses to be constructed and sold during a two-year program on the first phase at the Escondido Hills Development.

The 163-acre parcel, located between Highway 395 and Broadway in the city of Escondido is the largest planned unit development in Northern San Diego County.

The second phase plans envision additional garden homes and townhouses as well as apartment and commercial buildings. Current price indications show the starting prices for townhouses at $15,750, and garden homes at $17,950.

The 108-acre Village San Juan site, one of Orange County's largest planned unit developments, is located adjacent to the San Diego Freeway and the Mission Viejo community.

It is to be developed with approximately 250 townhouses surrounding a man-made lake, and 550 garden homes, enclosed by wide greenbelts and parks. Prices are to start at $18,990 for garden homes and $19,990 for townhouses.

To host 170 Germans

One hundred seventy German businessmen will be in Long Beach this fall to learn firsthand how this commercial community ticks.

Tabbed "Meet the Americans," the program is an outgrowth of a long standing plan whereby teachers here and abroad exchanged visits. It is known as the American Host Program.

The group of Germans, planning to arrive Sept. 19 for a four-day stay, will be co-hosted by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, City and Port of Long Beach along with the convention bureau.

Don Gill, Chamber president, said Don L. Barrett of Buftums' is chairman of the host committee which aims to house each German in a private residence.

Visiting group members will be made at home with business counterparts as much as possible.

A fair portion of their time here will be spent in organized tours, including the Douglas plant and the Port of Long Beach, and a major civic luncheon. Their free time can be used to study industry of their choice and recreation, Gill said.

Service clubs and other organizations here have been asked to canvass their members for volunteer hosts.

That the stop in Long Beach, and a similar one in Northern California, is deemed important to the West

Also starting today is the custom fairway lot sales program by Macnab-Irvine Realty Company. "Homes to be built on the Macnab-Irvine lots adjoining Big Canyon Country Club's golf course will range up to $500,000 or more in cost," Hughes said.

"Still another residential element will be a luxury condominium development — Deane Homes-Big Canyon — being built by veteran homebuilder Ben C. Deane's new firm, Deane Development Company," Hughes said.

INCLUDING floor plans that will provide up to 3,700 square feet, designs and renderings of Deane Homes, priced from $85,000-$115,000, are available for viewing at a temporary sales office located on Big Canyon Drive overlooking the 18th green.

"The premise on which Big Canyon was based," Hughes noted, "is that the business executive and semi-retired executive of the 1970s want to be able to live close to their work and recreational pursuits." "Across the nation there is a movement of major companies to the suburbs because executives can find more time for work by not having to commute and also can spend more time with their families and enjoy the advantages of nearby recreational amenities," he said. "And that's exactly the situation at Big Canyon."

THE SITE encompassing Big Canyon's private golf course and residential neighborhoods is bounded by four major arterial roads. They are Ford and San Joaquin Hills Roads on the north and south and MacArthur Boulevard and Jamboree Road on the east and west.

"The community will be limited to the area now under development. There is no room for expanding the limits of the project," said Hughes, whose firm has developed such other Orange County luxury communities as Linda Isle and Irvine Cove.

"The initial phase of development involves some 400 dwelling units and homesites," Hughes noted.

SECLUDED within its own boundaries, the Big Canyon project is just north of the Newport Financial Center, fast becoming the focus of Orange County business and finance, and a few miles south of the 300-firm Irvine Industrial Complex, one of the nation's fastest growing industrial parks.

Big Canyon also is only a few minutes drive from such Newport Harbor attractions as the Balboa Bay Club, the beach at Corona del Mar, and Fashion Island, one of the Southland's premiere shopping centers.

THIS conviction is shared by three leading Orange County homebuilding and real estate executives — all of whom are playing prominent roles along with Irvine in developing Big Canyon.

One is Richard B. Smith, whose Broadmoor Homes organization opens four furnished models today. Another is John Macnab, president of Macnab-Irvine Realty Company, a veteran realtor who is directing the custom fairway lot sales program.

The third is Ben Deane, who, with his son, Larry, is about to start construction on a major condominium project in Big Canyon.

Smith's Broadmoor project contains spacious four and five-bedroom homes, most of which are located on lots with unencumbered views of the beautiful suburban environment.

hili Chamber leaders "may result in reciprocal tourism," reports Harry D. Easton, director, economic-industrial development committee for the Long Beach Chamber.

"And that's a switch," he adds.

And, in New Zealand, the delegation cemented better trade relations in individual meetings with counterparts and in mass meetings.

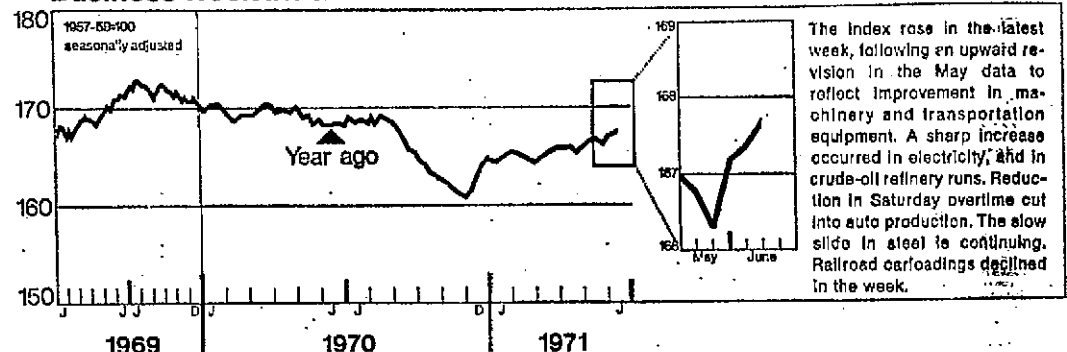

Past Chamber President Roy Anderson and Vice

Mayor Bert Bond were interviewed on Christchurch TV; Roy answering detailed questions on wide-bodied aircraft; Bert, on the Queen Mary.

The group continued on to Sydney, Australia, for high-level meetings with Australian businessmen, then caught its collective breath with a stop in the Fijis en route home.

Next year's trade mission? Well, maybe South America — or Europe.

Business Week index

Crude refinery runs rise

The index rose 0.3 per cent this week due mainly to a sharp rise in electricity which jumped 6.9 per cent. Crude oil refinery runs rose 1.5 per cent.

Steel production dropped 0.2 per cent due to an operation cut back as strike hedging orders continued to slow down.

Auto production was down 2.0 per cent due to a drop in overtime. GM scheduled overtime at two car and one truck assembly plants and Ford at two car plants.

Inter-city truck tonnage data was not available because of the union strike.

All other car loadings are down 2.5 per cent and miscellaneous car loadings are down 5.6 per cent.

RAW STEEL PRODUCTION is declining in the U.S., but the output pattern is about the same as that of 1968, the last previous steel labor contract year, Industry Week reported this week.

Most of the reductions are being made through closing down of open hearth furnaces, the most costly to operate, and through a slowing down of some of the more economical basic oxygen furnaces. Mill operating policy, the business magazine said, has changed from one of "push it out fast" to "produce it as economically as possible."

Mills are now concentrating their production efforts on the finishing of steel to be delivered before steelworkers' labor contracts expire July 31.

Both large and small companies in most major steel producing areas are trimming operations. Others say they will ease off on raw steel by the end of this month.

Three years ago, raw steel output peaked at 2,922,000 net tons in the final week of April, and then fluctuated downward for the rest of the second quarter.

This year's new all-time weekly high of 2,960,000 tons was reached in the same week, and while it was attained for two consecutive weeks, the trend since early May has been downward.

The business magazine estimated that U.S. mills poured 2,700,000 net tons of raw steel in the week-ended June 19. This represents a third consecutive weekly decline.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Enter now age of 'un-sell'

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Advertising over the years has been through recurring periods of "hard sell" and

"soft sell." Enter now the age of "un-sell," which may be followed by an era of "anti-sell." The harbinger of this new epoch is Consolidated Edison, a New York power company which recently announced it was changing its advertising policy from promoting the use of electricity to discouraging the use of electricity.

Demand for electricity has become so great that henceforth a Con. Ed advertising will urge the company's customers to use less of it, a spokesman explained.

Well, unselling electricity undoubtedly is better than a backout, so we can hope that other utilities in power-short areas will adopt this approach.

ONE wonders, however, whether the un-sell technique will be forceful enough to provide an adequate deterrent. It may be that power companies will have to resort to the anti-sell.

By which I mean that rather than merely urge customers to conserve electricity, the power com-

'Packaged Home' concept moving toward reality

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — The "packaged home" in which big pricetag consumer goods are purchased in groups rather than individual units, is fast becoming a reality.

The observation was made by Richard R. Finlay, vice president of planning for Lane Wood, Inc., a Dallas-based manufacturer of mobile homes, at the Southwest Mobile Home Show in Houston.

The new concept allows a family to move into a fully furnished, fully equipped home that bears a single price tag, Finlay said.

"We see this trend in homebuilding through homes being offered with carpets, drapes and built-in kitchens," he said.

"By 1980, 50 per cent of all furniture, rugs and carpet manufactured in the United States will be purchased as elements in complete design packages."

Factors pointing to the packaged buying trend include:

—Construction of single family dwellings dropped from 77 per cent of total U.S. housing starts to 54 per cent during the past decade.

—Retail sales dropped to 64 per cent of total personal expenditures in 1968, compared with 71 per cent a decade ago.

—Carpet sales to the contract market moved from 15 per cent of total sales to 40 per cent during the past 10 years.

—More than 50 per cent of such major appliances as electric ranges and automatic dishwashers are already sold for resale as part of a home package.

Despite the weak economic climate, mobile home sales increased more than 100 per cent to more than 400,000 units during the past three years, Finlay said.

L.B. Chamber Notes

Long Beach-born Robert B. Carleson, appointed by Governor Reagan as director of the State Department of Social Welfare last December, will speak at the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday.

The session will be held at the Holiday Inn, Lakewood at Willow, with breakfast tickets priced at $2.50.

Because of recent, swift developments on the state's welfare front, Carleson has indicated he will eliminate a "canned" speech and, instead, bring to Long Beach an up-to-date "understanding of the state administration's attitudes and ideas relating to social welfare programs."

A question-and-answer period will be provided.

Second home boom continues unabated

NEW YORK (UPI) — Many families are living double lives.

They're the country's second home owners, and their number is increasing by leaps and bounds as more and more people decide they need to have a place to go to "get away from it all."

Most of them aren't the faces you see on the society pages, either. The average buyer of a second home is a family man, 41 years old, with two or three children, earning $1,100 a month. His primary reasons for buying are to escape the city and to provide an investment for the future.

So says Frank R. Carcise, chairman of the American Land Development Association, an organization of land developers from all sections of the country which keeps its finger on the pulse of the second home boom.

AN ADDED incentive to the second home market is time — more and more of it, Carcise said. The three day holiday weekend is growing in popularity and, increasingly, companies — including Mutual of New York, Samsonite and Metropolitan Life — are experimenting with the three and four day work week.

What's the typical second home like? "It may be almost any style, but one thing it's not is an extension of the family's first home," Carcise said.

"Many buyers live in large, crowded cities. A great number of second home developments feature swimming pools, golf course, tennis courts, lakes and marinas, hiking trails and clubhouses.

"Many of these are evolving into self-sustaining communities with their own fire and police forces, separate utility systems and security and maintenance patrols.

"The most successful second home developments are those that offer a vast range of unspoiled, natural land where homeowners get a double bonus — mountains and beachfront.

"Our typical homeowner wants to be close to nature without roughing it."

USUALLY A family uses its second home as a way to provide contrast with daily living. Decorating styles often are completely different from the city home. Living style, too, is different — more informal and less scheduled. Dress is casual, Carcise said.

"The movement toward second home buying will continue on the upswing," he predicted. Since January, he said, the American Land Development Association has sponsored four regional seminars across the country so that developers could exchange ideas and talk with legislators, educational leaders and financial experts in the land development industry.

CARCISE noted a recent California study which showed the ratio of vacation homes per 1,000 of the state's population rose from 6.4 per cent in 1960 to a present 8.5 per cent. By 1980, it is estimated, the ratio will be 11 per cent.

Nationwide, 300,000 families are expected to buy or build a second home within the next two years. The median value will be $7,800, according to the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

The Census Bureau also tells us, Carcise said, that by the year 2000 there will be 320 million Americans, an increase of 110 million.

AUTHORS AIM AT BUSINESSMEN

Computers, investors, decisions topic for new books

THE ART OF SYSTEMS ANALYSIS, Prentice-Hall, $12.95.

In today's commercial environment, top business management and systems analysis speak two different languages — making it extremely difficult to communicate and coordinate their goals, objectives, and procedures.

Because this factor can cost a company enormous amounts of time and money, three men eminently known in the systems field have bridged this gap with this remarkable new guidebook.

The authors are Brian Rothery, Alan Mullally and Brendan Byrne.

This pace-setting new volume arms the actual computer users — analysts, researchers, RDP professionals — with the tools to effectively communicate with management, assist them in setting realistic goals, and get the job done more quickly.

It offers the most effective ways to develop and use computer-based information and control systems, shows how to set up a total systems plan that is practically "bug-proof" and supplies almost 100 useful exhibits, including block diagrams, organization charts and decision tables. — RLB.

GUIDE TO SUCCESSFUL REAL ESTATE INVESTING, BUYING, FINANCING AND LEASING, by George Mair. Prentice-Hall, $12.95.

Now the small investor can capitalize on a number of highly promising real estate opportunities, despite intense competition, and come out a winner.

How? It's all explained in George Mair's new book.

Here's a book that shows how to invest with three important aspects of real estate in mind: buying at a profit; obtaining the best financing; and leasing property to get a high yield income flow. The same techniques used by big-money real estate investors are all explained in simple, non-technical language to insure maxi-

The guide gives a frank, honest evaluation of all kinds of realty investment: lots in subdivision, one and two family houses, retail stores, office buildings, industrial plants, and others. There is also a thorough discussion of sound investment objectives such as capital appreciation, current income, tax shelter, and combinations of the three. —RLB.

EARNINGS PER SHARE AND MANAGEMENT DECISIONS, by John F. Childs. Prentice-Hall, $15.

Are earnings per share a reliable yardstick for making profitable management decisions? "No!" says John F. Childs, vice president of a large commercial bank and author of the previous "Long-Term Financing."

He gives a detailed analysis of this and other questions vital to profitable management decision making in this new book.

In straight-from-the-shoulder language, the book reveals the often costly consequences of playing the earnings-per-share game, and describes a sound alternative approach that Childs claims attracts investors, satisfies stockholders, and produces remarkable results in the long-term growth of the company.

Childs' approach includes a safe, sound method for the sale of common stock that increases rather than decreases current earnings per share, a tested method of acquisition that should immediately increase earnings per share and insure long-term growth at the same time, and three methods for increasing returns on common book value that will automatically increase earnings per share without misleading management or investors. —RLB.

More than 200 Los Angeles Region Chrysler-Plymouth dealers and managerial employees attended a "WHO CARES... WE CARE" marketing meeting at the Los Angeles Hilton Hotel last week.

Dick MacKaig, president of the Los Angeles Chrysler-Plymouth Dealers Association, and Lew Jabro, executive secretary of the association, presented an in-depth report of the problems besetting the auto industry including consumerism, public and governmental criticism and individual attacks which break down the good will between auto dealers and the buying public.

Citing recent consumer surveys which showed that the typical car buyer feels that auto dealers don't care... salesmen don't care... service managers don't care... in fact nobody cares about the prospective buyer, Jabro pointed out the need of definite action on the part of each dealership.

This action would be a positive demonstration at the dealership level that all employees of Chrysler-Plymouth dealerships do care. A total program for the dealer entitled "WE CARE" was shown to the group, and each dealer present was urged to participate and discuss the "We Care" program with all employees.

THE "WE CARE" PROGRAM is so designed to be carried on from the dealer at the top, down through his sales, service and parts department.

It was pointed out by Jabro that this program is an antidote to correct the many areas of public concern.

"It is in reality, an extension of the successful Chrysler Corporation national campaign 'Your Man in Detroit' down to the dealership level."

Association President, MacKaig, closed with "This campaign requires a commitment from every dealer to honestly care. And not only must he care, he must give positive proof that he does care."

Western economists' outlook heavy with optimism

LOS ANGELES—(BW)—Despite an unclear international monetary picture, rising interest rates, and continuing high unemployment, Western economists still view the national economic outlook with optimism.

A survey of 12 leading economists and economic analysts who make up the economic advisory board for the Western business-financial newsweekly, California Business, almost unanimously indicate the national economy is continuing to show a growth trend headed moderately upward. The lone dissenter was more bullish than the rest of the group, seeing the economy moving slightly faster than that and adding it's not growing at full speed yet. Harold Buma, vice president and head economist at Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco, the maverick on the board this time, says his outlook for the year is "still very optimistic."

"I'm pleased with the actions of the consumer, and the recent wage settlements in the aluminum industry don't indicate to me an escalation of wage bargaining," Buma says.

DR. RAY JALLOW, senior vice president and chief economist of United California Bank in Los Angeles, in last month's survey saw the economy moving sharply upward.

Though still encouraged this month, Jallow says "moderately upward" best characterizes the national economy's present trend. His optimism stems from the economy's steady rate of growth in the first five months of the year, indicated by a 7½ per cent increase in the purchase of goods and services since the first of the year and a 40 per cent boost in the housing industry over a year ago.

Jallow forecasts a continuation of the trend and further recovery from last year's recession. But, he warns, "there will be a soft spot in the third quarter due to the liquidation of steel inventories resulting from the expected steel strike."

"The fourth quarter will show a continuation of the first and second quarters," he predicts, adding corporate profits in the second quarter should be up sharply over this year's first quarter and over the comparable period a year ago.

Greene sees continued growth in the economy. But he's quick to point out it will be a "long, drawn-out process for the remainder of this year and into 1972."

THE California Business Economic Advisory Board is a sounding board on regional and national economic affairs. Members are polled once a month on how they view the trend of the national economy. Other members polled in this month's survey include:

Miner Baker, vice president and economist, Seattle First National Bank.
Ray Broughton, vice president, First National Bank of Oregon, Portland.
Joseph Charnesky, statistician and manager of research, Valley National Bank, Phoenix.
Dr. Thomas Hitch, senior vice president and director of research, First Hawaiian Bank, Honolulu.
Dr. Elroy Nelson, senior vice president and economist, First Security Bank of Utah, Salt Lake City.
Robert Tripp, president, Albuquerque National Bank and New Mexico Bankshare Corp.

EARLY CALIFORNIA LIVING ROOM... At La Linda

La Linda unit in closeout

Only eight homes remain to be sold in a special close-out of the third unit of La Linda Homes in Fountain Valley.

"Our homes have been selling at a record rate," said Dick Hall, principal of Tricon Development Company, builders of the homes. "In fact during the month of May we recorded more than a million dollars in sales."

Close-out prices on the third unit homes start at $32,450.

Hall attributes much of the sales success to the famed Mile Square Park, a 485-acre park being constructed adjacent to the La Linda project. The park is expected to be completely finished by 1975.

An 18 hole golf course and clubhouse are in operation at the park, and 77 acres of rolling turf that has play equipment, picnic facilities and restrooms.

LA LINDA homes come family-ready with carpeting, draperies throughout, front lawns with a tree and sprinklers, rear and side yard fencing and concrete driveways.

La Linda has four model homes open daily with plans of three, four and five-bedrooms, two or three-baths and two and three-car garages.

A special program of move-in costs is available to all qualified veterans. This plan allows vets to buy a home with a $1 down payment.

Included in the single, two-story and tri-level homes are double entry doors, fireplaces, paneled family room walls, formal dining rooms, private bath suites for all master bedrooms, forced air heating, exposed beam ceilings and walk-in closets.

The homes are located on Euclid Street, just north of Warner Avenue.

Dear BBB:

Q. I love plants and have lots of them in our home. A friend of mine says that she reads something put out by the U.S. government and insists that my plants can kill my baby. I tried to get information by calling City Hall but they didn't know anything about this. Is it true?

A. Your friend must have read a bulletin published by the Food and Drug Administration. The FDA has warned gardeners and householders about the hazards of possible poisoning from common decorative plants or their seeds. These include the castor bean and the jessamine bean (which also is known as the rose of Sharon). These can be fatal if swallowed. The FDA also says that one poinsettia leaf can kill a child. Mistletoe has caused the death of children and adults. Other plants that are hazardous are daffodils, hyacinth and narcissus bulbs. You can write to the FDA in Washington, D.C. and ask for more information.

Q. My husband just has to keep up with his boss. When his boss bought a new car, my husband traded in our car for the same make and model. I'm sure his boss thinks it's funny and I know his wife does, because she told me. Anyway, the boss went on a business trip to Hong Kong and came back with a tailored suit. I thought my husband would have a fit, but I was glad because I thought he would stop all this nonsense. But early this month a man came to town from a Hong Kong firm and you can bet my husband was the first customer he had. He ordered and paid for five suits. Then when they arrived we had to pay duty and they don't fit right. Can we get our money back?

A. You can try. We are sending you a list of addresses in Hong Kong. These organizations will try to help you. You might point out to your husband that he has probably paid more for these suits than he would have buying them here.

Record year predicted

Improved quality and new automatic features will pace color television to a sales record this year, an industry executive said this week in Los Angeles.

James T. McMurphy, vice president—consumer sales of Philco-Ford Corp., forecast sales of 6,350,000 color TV receivers in the U.S. in 1971. That would exceed the record set in 1968 by more than 250,000 units.

Black-and-white television sales will also rise again this year and approximate 7,100,000 units, according to McMurphy.

Combined color and black-and-white sales will set a new overall record, he said, and the 13,000,000 receivers will have a retail value of close to $4 billion.

Two new Bixby Hill models open this weekend in L.B.

Saturday, June 26, 1971 Long Beach INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM—P.5

A sneak preview showing of two new luxury models at Bixby Hill are being held this weekend in Long Beach.

These two new additions now bring the total of Bixby Hill models to seven. The choicest sweeping new homesites will be available with the pre-grand-opening sale of these homes.

"By popular request, we've added these two new models to our complex," stated Dorene Smith, project sales manager.

"Since we have not officially opened these new homes, we are offering them at a much lower sales price than our other homes. However, due to the rising costs of labor and materials, our selling prices will rise considerably after our Grand Opening. So we suggest that home shoppers visit us now while this special offer is still in effect.

BOTH NEW homes feature four bedrooms, family room, formal dining room, and huge master suites. One model, the Serra, is a split level design with a huge secluded sunken family room and a 3-car garage.

The other, the Santana, is a two-story home boasting a 400 square foot game room over a two-car garage.

Features included in the purchase price are shag carpeting throughout, custom light fixtures shown in the models, decorator vinyl floors, imported marble pullman tops, kitchens with self-cleaning double ovens, wet bars, elegant entry floors of marble, terrazzo and glazed brick and custom fireplaces.

BIXBY HILL has become known as an exclusive new home community.

A totally, walled-in private community, it is situated on the site surrounding the historical Rancho Los Alamitos.

Private entry gates, patrolled by security guards maintain complete security for all residents.

The last segment of this community is open, with many large, cul-de-sac lots available.

plex, take the San Diego Freeway to Palo Verde off-ramp and continue south to the entry gates. The new models are priced from $61,900.

Thursday marked the 60th anniversary of the founding of the Port of Long Beach.

The "birthday" will be celebrated today with the public encouraged to visit open ships and take free boat tours of the harbor.

The visiting four-masted Japanese sailing ship will be open to visitors from 10 a.m. 'til 4 p.m. except for the noon hour.

The boat tours will leave from Pierpoint Landing and from the Catalina Cruise terminal.

Operators of the new 500-passenger Long Beach Prince will christen the craft then take a few VIP's on a harbor tour before opening the boat to the public from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The USS Gridley, a Guided Missile Frigate, will be berthed adjacent to the Japanese ship and will also hold open ship.

THE LOS ANGELES BOARD of Harbor Commissioners this week set a $38,939,224 budget for operation and development of the harbor.

Estimated gross receipts during fiscal 1971-72 are $19,798,000. If estimates are close to being actual the port will receive $10.2 million from shipping services.

Rentals of wharf, land and buildings should produce an additional $5.4 million. Oil royalties, warehouses, terminal railway and concessions are expected to reap about $597,000.

Miscellaneous non-operating revenues should produce approximately $3.6 million. Largest expenditure, $20.6 million, will go for capital improvements.

Harbor department salaries will eat up $7.8 million.

IN-PORTANT PEOPLE: Recently retired Los Angeles Harbor Commissioner Fred Isamu Wada was presented with a commendatory scroll this week lauding his contributions to the work of the Harbor Commission.

At a luncheon aboard the Princess Louise, Commission president Frank C. Sullivan, commended Wada noting:

"I want to take particular note of Fred Wada's help in strengthening the ties between the Port of Los Angeles and Japanese prefectures, cities and ports."

Wada was first appointed to the commission in January 1969. He resigned May 19 this year giving ill health, pressure of other business commitments, and catching up on much postponed fishing as his reasons.

Extra care, extra effort Common sense in house selling

Selling a house can be a trying experience for the average homeowner.

But it doesn't have to be, according to Public Affairs Manager Benjamin A. Geards of the Santa Ana office of Allstate Insurance Companies, who offers here a few simple rules to help ease the pains of making that big sale:

First impressions are always-lasting impressions. Be sure that the front of your house is in top-notch shape. Keep your lawn neatly groomed and well-trimmed. The yard should be completely free of refuse. Most important, be sure that your front door and entrance are spotless.

These are the first things a potential buyer sees. If he spots any defects here, you can be sure he will examine the rest of the house with extra caution, keeping a special eye for other possible flaws.

When preparing the house for a prospective tour, pay special attention to the kitchen and bedrooms. Women, in particular, will be very interested in their appearance. If any minor repairs are needed, such as a dripping faucet, fix them before showing your home. They might make a difference in the final price. Little flaws like sticking doors and windows, and loose knobs detract from the appeal of a house and give the potential buyer a good bargaining position.

REMEMBER, TOO, that a prospective buyer might lose interest because of distractions. Whenever showing a house, be sure to keep the children quiet and pets out of the way.

Never have the television or radio playing loudly. Many sales have been lost for less than this.

Closet space is extremely important to the potential buyer. Women inspect closets and storage space very carefully. If clothes, shoes and other articles are neatly arranged, the prospect will see that the closet is adequate.

Safety precautions are a necessity. All stairs should be clear and easily accessible. Cluttered steps detract from the cleanliness of a house and negatively influence a buyer. Keep all hazards out of the way.

Other tips: The kitchen should be decorated in a homey fashion with a small vase of flowers easily visible, dishes washed and floors cleaned and waxed. Bedrooms should be neatly arranged with attractive bedspreads. Curtains should be cleaned and pressed and displayed on all windows.

A seller should also keep in mind that the prospect is not visiting on a social call. He is present on a business matter — inspecting the house. Always be courteous, but never force a prospective purchaser into idle conversation.

THE FINAL TIPS of major importance: Check the homeowners policy on your present home thoroughly. Find out what coverages you have and how they apply to the sale of your home.

Most policies cover your furniture and other contents in transit from your old house to the new one.

Consult your insurance agent to find out if your policy provides this coverage.

Finally, when purchasing your new house, be sure to seek the advice of an insurance agent in your new location immediately. You can't afford to be without one.

What Realty Boards Are Doing

LONG BEACH

Ving Sewell, program chairman for this month's Long Beach District Board of Realtors' breakfasts, has announced Tuesday's speaker as Winn L. Smith, management development administrator for Title Insurance and Trust Company.

Smith's topic: "Programming Success for Yourself."

Sewell said the 7:15 a.m. session will be at the Queen's Restaurant.

Hospital work is completed

Construction has been completed on the $2 million expansion program at Bay Harbor Hospital, 1327 Lomita Blvd., Harbor City.

Planned by the architectural firm of Rochlin & Baran & Associates, specialists in the designing of health care facilities, the increment is part of a long term masterplan which began in 1960.

Collins and McPherson, Inc. served as the general contractors.

Covering 27,000 square feet, the three-story structure rises in strong horizontal and vertical, concrete and plaster masses, punctuated by dark solar gray glass and anodized aluminum frames and siding to form voluminous North and South stair towers.

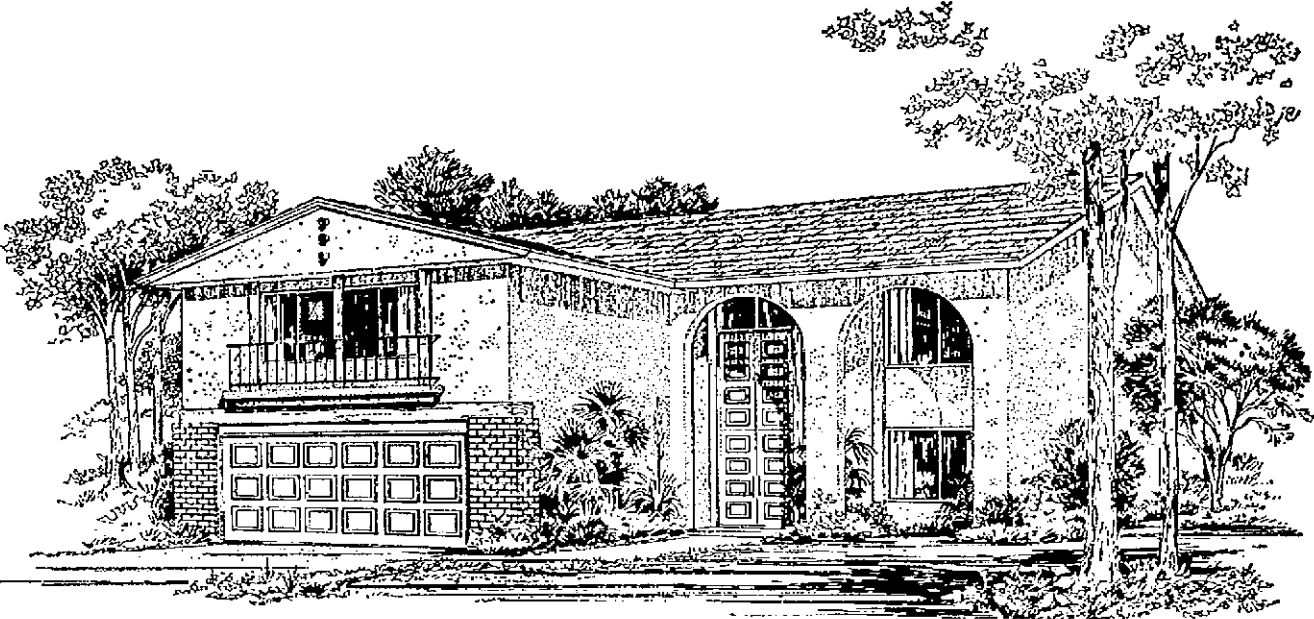

Auxiliary areas strategically located on the first floor and basement level include two major surgeries, recovery room, complete emergency department, special procedures facilities expanded X-ray department, cast room, dietary department and storage.

The third floor is comprised of staff facilities, doctors' library, lounge, locker and sleeping areas.

Bonds in sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Housing and Urban Development said it will sell $171 million worth of housing bonds to the public July 21.

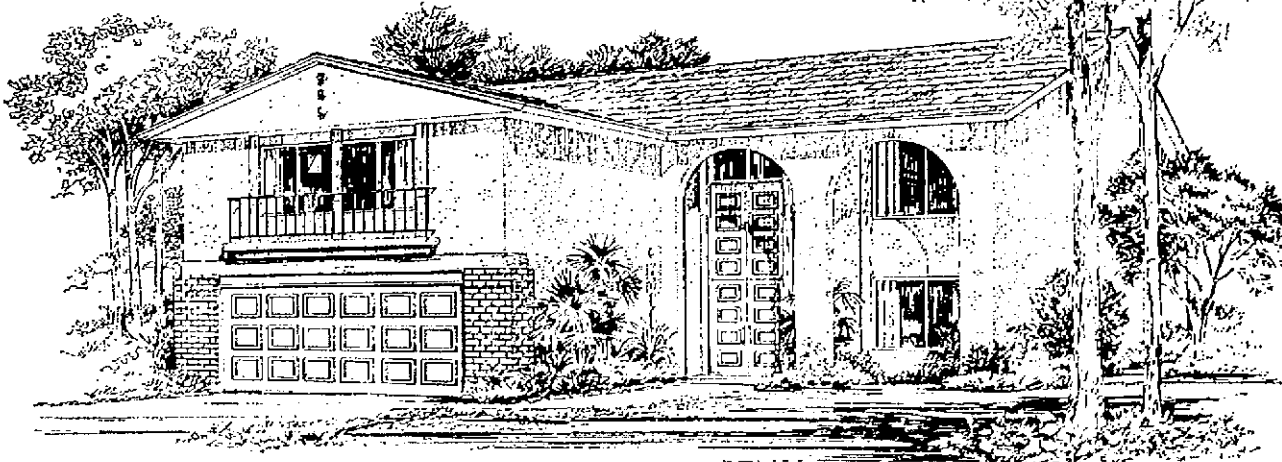

The issue is the unsold remainder of an offering made last month.

Larwin's 10th Tempo-Cerritos unit opening moved up

A tenth unit of 72 new homes has opened six months ahead of schedule at Larwin's Tempo community in Cerritos, where sales have exceeded $10.5 million since its 1968 opening.

"Buyers can select the lot and plan of their choice

Tempo homes are priced from $24,990, with FHA, VA, Cal-Vet, GPO, and

Seven decorator-furnished models are on display, with 32 exteriors available. Woodward A.I.A., Larwin's award-winning director of environmental design.

"TEMPO homes offer a variety of designs with from two to seven bedrooms that make them ideal for family living, with homes to grow into, not out of," Sullivan said. "In addition, we're including partial wall-to-wall carpeting, fenced rear yards with a front gate, self-cleaning General Electric ovens, dishwashers and wood-burning fireplaces.

Additional features at Tempo include Garden View Kitchens and family rooms with extensive use of glass that give the rooms a fresh, open look, pass-through patio bars, formal dining rooms, dramatic master bedroom suites, custom-finished cabinetry, and walk-in closets. Covered entries and volumetric ceilings are also featured in most plans.

County Tempo program. The community opened in October, 1968, and sales this year have exceeded $4.25 million.

Larwin has five Tempo Communities in the Los Angeles area, with a sixth to open soon.

Tempo can be reached from Los Angeles by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to the San Gabriel Freeway. Proceed south to the Artesia Freeway, going east to the Norwalk exit, south to Artesia Boulevard and left to the model site.

From the Long Beach area, take the San Diego Freeway to the San Gabriel Freeway and north to the Artesia Freeway. Go east to the Norwalk exit, turning right to Artesia Boulevard and left to the models.

RECREATIONAL VEHICLES READY FOR VACATIONERS

Aero Rent-A-Car, Los Alamitos, which began renting recreational vehicles in 1967 with fleet totaling three, now has 40 from which vacationers may choose. Owner of fast-growing firm, Lewis M. Webb, offers "fly-in, camp-out" plan whereby customers can fly into Los Angeles International, accept their Aero unit and return it there when their vacation ends. All Webb's motor homes and most campers are self-contained, with rentals at $165 and $110 a week, respectively, plus mileage. Webb also is planning seven and 15-day caravans, complete with "wagonmaster" this fall.

gional Civic Center and four recreation clubs.

Since October, ACD has been involved in more than $16 million in construction to evolve Laguna Niguel into a total living environment.

Homes in Laguna Niguel are priced from $25,900 to $80,000. Some are inland, appealing to people who like a drier, warmer climate, and some are at the ocean for those who enjoy beach weather.

Classic-styled early California condominiums are under construction in The West Nine, an area adjacent to the El Niguel Country Club golf course.

The first phase contains 42 homes with a total of 178 planned. These residences, which start at $25,900 will be open for preview showing to the public Sunday, April 25.

ON THE OCEAN, in the Shores area, are 57 garden homes under construction above a series of custom lots. The Shores is protected by two guard gate houses, and homes will range in price from $33,000 to $80,000.

Further inland is The Highlands area in which homes are priced from $27,500. On hillside lots, these maintenance-free residences overlook the valley and rolling foothills of Laguna Niguel.

For Highlands' residents there is a full recreation center with clubhouse, pool and seven-acre playground.

In addition to these current ACD home projects are custom homes and lots for custom homes for sale in The Shores, Monarch Bay Terrace and The West Nine.

These current ACD developments further round-out life-styles already established in Laguna Niguel.

The variety also includes Monarch Bay with custom homes; Monarch Bay Mall with luxury condominiums; and medium-priced homes including Pacific Island Village, an adult community with homes from $37,000 to $80,000.

Laguna Niguel is reached by driving south on the Santa Ana-San Diego Freeway to Crown Valley Parkway; or south on Pacific Coast Highway to Crown Valley Parkway.

Getz firm in larger quarters

The Long Beach firm, George Getz and Son, Inc., has changed its name to Gordon Getz and Assoc., Inc.

Its offices have been moved to larger quarters at 4645 E. Anaheim.

George Getz has been involved in the Real Estate Loan business in Long Beach and the surrounding communities for 25 years.

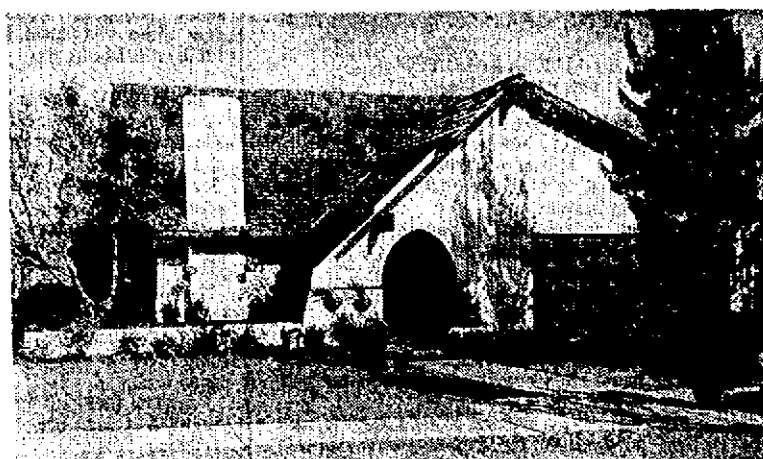

Gordon Getz, his son, started working for his father in 1957. In 1963, Gordon purchased the company. Since that time, he has expanded the company's field of operation which now include California Federal Savings, private money loans and sales.

The company is an exclusive loan agent for California Federal for Torrance and Carson and has, in addition, just been appointed exclusive agent by Cal-Fed for government insured loans for a large portion of the West Los Angeles area.

The company has created and serviced over $1,600,000 of private money loans and has entered into the real estate sales field primarily in multiple units and commercial properties.

panies would encourage them to switch to gas.

But hold! Didn't I read the other day in a report on energy resources that the supply of natural gas is dwindling at an alarming rate?

If, therefore, the electricity companies began touting the use of gas, the gas companies might have no choice but to launch an advertising campaign promoting the use of oil.

Fuel oil, however, isn't all that abundant either. Which could force the fuel oil companies into an advertising campaign recommending a switch to coal.

And then the coal companies . . . but there is no need to spell it out. I'm sure you already can visualize institutional ads by the National Coal Association extolling electricity.

In a way it's a pity that the railroads didn't think of this first. It could have saved them a lot of money lost in deficit passenger operations.

Instead the railroads tried to get by with the "non-sell," or no passenger advertising at all. But that failed to persuade enough passengers to stop riding trains.

In retrospect it is clear that the railroads should have been advertising bus and airline transportation.

Major appliance sales boom; profits not as big

Special to Progress Section

Sales of major appliances may be running ahead of last year but not all retailers are overjoyed about it.

They claim that picky, bargain-hunting shoppers and thin profit margins do not indicate a retail boom.

In New Orleans, appliance-store owner Fred Berner reports "mediocre" sales in "white goods" — refrigerators, washers and the like. Berner says "You don't know what to expect from one day to another."

And the trend toward new lines of small-size appliances — compact dishwashers, dryers, and refrigerators — reduces the profit in what retailers do sell.

With housing starts well ahead of 1970 figures, the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers is making jubilant predictions.

HOWEVER, a survey of top dealers around the nation conducted by Business Week reveals "trouble spots" in the appliance trade.

On the bright side, the manufacturers' association reports that some 6.3 million appliances were wholesaled in the first quarter, compared with 6.4 million last year — and predicts a 7 per cent gain in 1971.

Furthermore, retail sales of major appliances jumped 6 per cent in the first quarter as compared to the same period last year.

On the other hand, a spokesman for the giant Federated Stores chain says that after a strong first quarter, appliance sales have slipped and there is less widespread conviction now than a month ago that an economic upturn is reviving sales of big-ticket items.

INTERVIEWS with appliance dealers suggest that it takes an extremely aggressive sales campaign to move costly items.

In Houston, Foley's stores are "pushing the hell out of air conditioners, and they're selling," an executive says.

In Chicago, heavy promotion on refrigerators and the new electronic ranges has been necessary to interest consumers.

But President Sol Polk of Polk Brothers there claims: "People will buy if you give them value" and credits good sales to the homebuilding upsurge in the area.

One visible development is the consumer's interest in less costly appliances — such as the preference for portable tv sets rather than bulky, console models.

"PEOPLE apparently don't have the money to put $600 down on a large tv set," says an official at Montgomery Ward, which had "extremely strong" appliance sales in the last 90 days.

The boom in sales of small color tv sets has produced joy among Japanese manufacturers, whose imports to this country more than doubled in April, to 107,000 units.

And General Electric's concentration on small-screen color over the years has paid off in sales of nearly two and a half times as many sets as the maker sold in the first quarter of last year.

Retailers claim, however, that if penny-pinching consumers buy small appliances, rather than big ones, they get little profit. Meantime, inventories of big-ticket items increase.

AS FOR air-conditioners, cool weather and rumors of possible brownouts has cut into sales.

Daniel Schmier, executive vice-president for sales at Friendly Frost, Inc., a 34-store chain in New York, Connecticut, and New Jersey, says "The publicity about power shortages hasn't helped sales. People won't buy them if they think they won't be able to use them."

Pushing sales up to at least their present levels has been the continuing formation of new families and their demand for new appliances.

Joseph S. Wright, chairman of Zenith Radio Corp., said: "The anticipated rise in marriages and births, along with household formations, provide a foundation for sustained healthy growth."

He says that about 6.75 million new households are to be formed in the first half of this decade and is optimistic about the future. And one hopeful sign is that more shoppers are coming in to price appliances even if they don't buy.

Whether they will is still a big questionmark in the nation's economic picture this year.

Don't come see these new homes in Laguna Niguel at sunset. Unless you bring your checkbook.

These new homes are located right along the seashore in Laguna Niguel.

They're in the areas called The Shores and The Sea Terrace. Almost all the homes in these areas have a view of the ocean.

And you can imagine the kind of view these homes have with the sun going down across the water. It's enough to make you want to move in right away. Without even seeing what the homes are like inside.

The most unusual homes in Southern California?

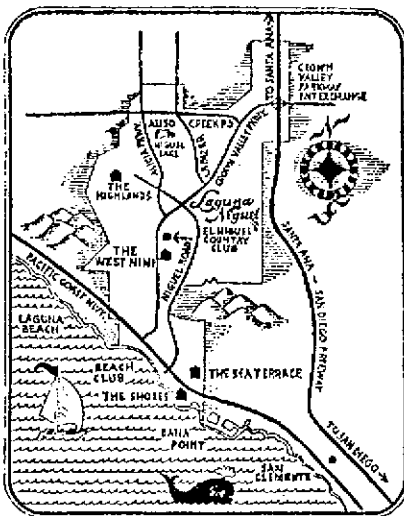

At The Shores, we believe we have some of the most unusual homes in Southern California.

These are very beautiful homes, built of wood and slump stone, but this isn't what makes them so unusual.

It's the fact that every room in these homes has a beautiful view. Some rooms overlook the sea. Some look out on a lovely garden atrium. And some open out onto the pool area.

The Sea Terrace area of Laguna Niguel is located just above The Shores.

As we said earlier, almost every home in this area has a view of the ocean.

But these homes are also interesting from another point of view. Because they're exceptionally roomy.

Most of these homes have four bedrooms. Some have three. All are extremely well designed to make the maximum use of space.

What is Laguna Niguel like?

When you live in Laguna Niguel, you have quite an assortment of recreational activities to choose from.

We have a beautiful beach. The beach at Laguna Niguel is one of the most unspoiled in Southern California.

We have a private beach club.

We have the El Niguel Country Club, with an 18-hole golf course that's rated as one of the three best in Southern California, and one of the finest in the United States. We're right next door to the new Dana Point Marina and Yacht Harbor.

Homes start at $39,750

We think the prices on homes in The Shores and The Sea Terrace are very reasonable.

Homes in The Shores start at $39,750. Homes in The Sea Terrace start at $44,400.

We offer you excellent conventional terms.

The prime rates went down not long ago, so we can now offer you the lowest rates available today.

We should emphasize that these are today's rates, not yesterday's or the day before's.

How to get here.

Take the San Diego-Santa Ana Freeway (Highway 5) to Crown Valley Parkway.

Follow Crown Valley Parkway till you see signs that direct you to "The Shores" or "The Sea Terrace."

Follow the signs till you get here.

Viking contract to RCA

RCA has announced it has received a more than $500,000 contract to design the Viking lander spacecraft communications system that will transmit scientific information directly from the surface of Mars to Earth, a distance of some 225 million miles across space.

The complete Viking lander communications system development program is expected to exceed $20 million, according to C. S. Constantino, division vice president and general manager of RCA's Astro-Electronics Division, Princeton, N.J.

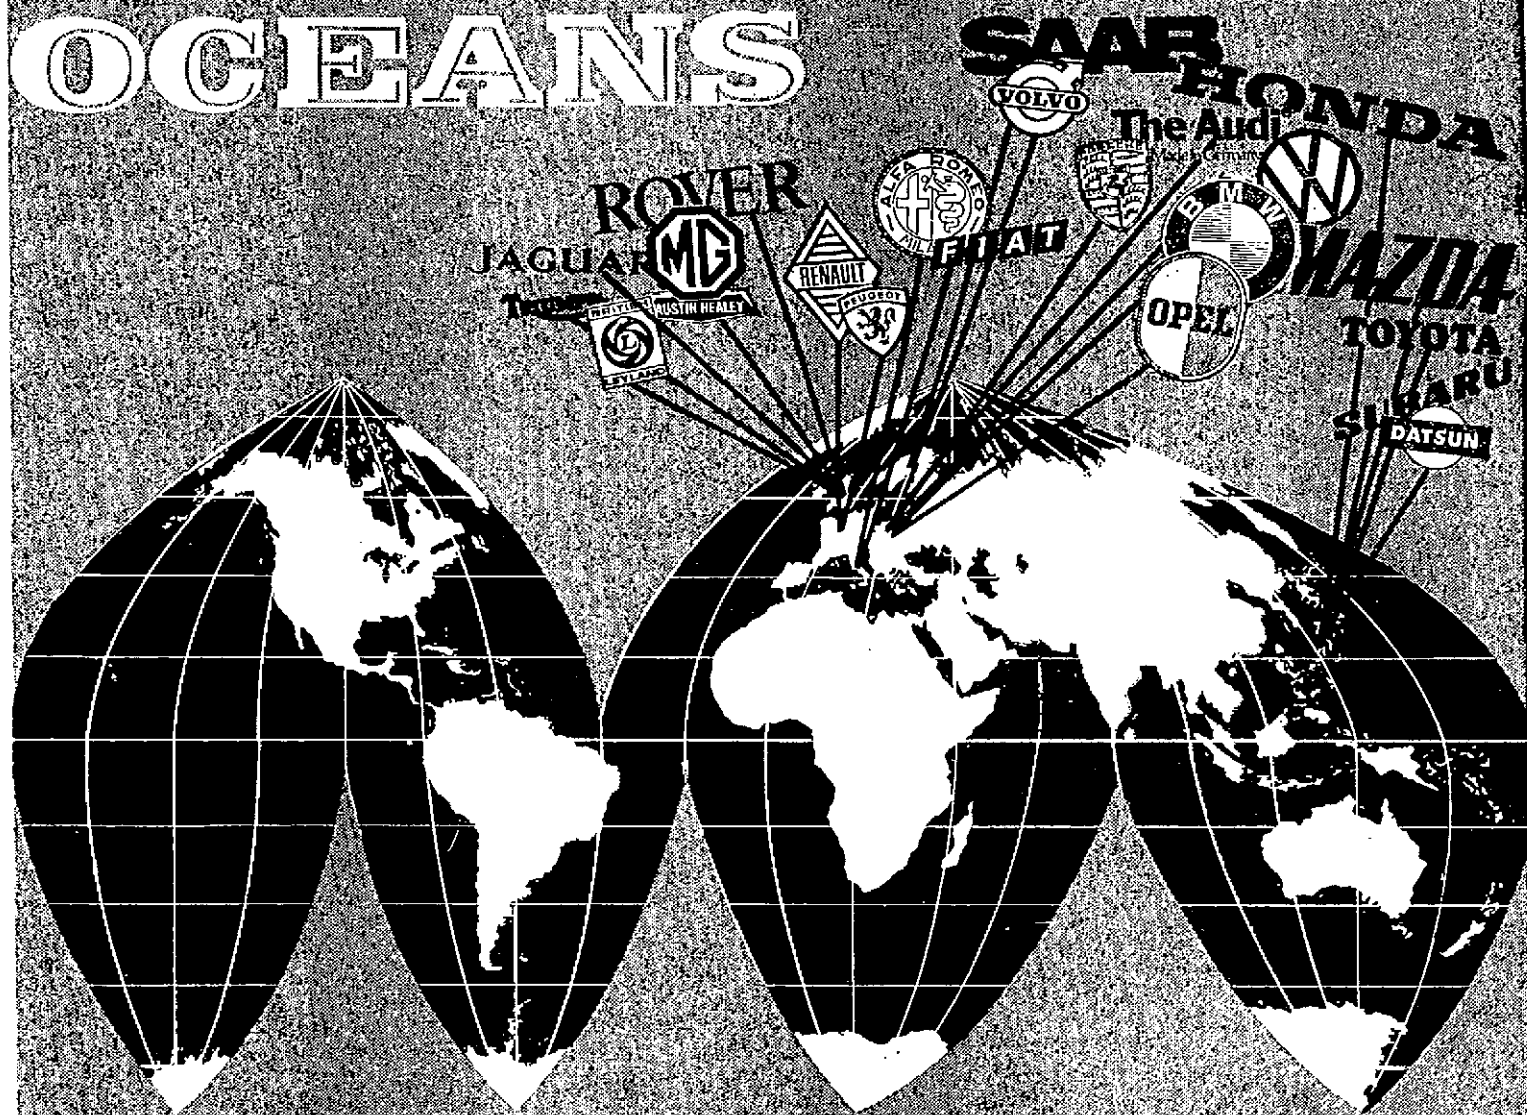

The Viking lander is slated to reach the Martian surface in the summer of 1976.

RCA Astro-Electronics is performing the design under a contract from the Martin Marietta Corporation.

Martin Marietta is the prime contractor for the Viking project, which is being directed by NASA's Langley Research Center, Hampton.

Import car dealers stay with times, often lead way

By BILL EMERY
Associate Auto Editor

Imported cars accounted for about 16 per cent of the over-all U.S. new-car market in May compared to 13.9 per cent in May, 1970. The March-April-May span in 1971 racked up the best three months for sales in import history. Each month surpassed 140,000 sales for the imports.

The six-county Southland area accounted for 40 per cent of the total U.S. sales of imported cars making this the prime market for cars from across the ocean.

California's anti-pollution regulations and U.S. Government vehicle safety delegations prompted auto manufacturers from 16 nations to put their heads together recently in Gleneagles, Scotland, to see if Japanese, American and European standards could be harmonized to eliminate the excessive cost and trouble of altering cars for different markets.

Delegates to the conference came from: U.S., Germany, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Spain, France, Italy, Japan, Norway, Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland, Yugoslavia and United Kingdom.

Model changes may have to be much less frequent if car prices are to be kept within reach of the average buyer.

The greater Long Beach-South Bay area imported car dealers are keeping pace with the times . . . often leading the way.

JIM GRAY, owner of Jim Gray Imports, was recently elected to the five member board of education for the Long Beach Unified School District and the Long Beach College District. He is also past president of the Long Beach Motor Car Dealers Association.

BOB AUTREY, owner of C. Bob Autrey Motors, just returned from Munich, Germany, winner of a two-week trip with BMW for outstanding sales and service achievement in a regional contest.

He won out over BMW dealers competing in the 11 Western states and ranked among the top 20 BMW dealers in the U.S. He also took time to visit the SAAB factory in Sweden and Fiat in Italy.

import from Japan have been skyrocketing from the first day. Among 23 imported car manufacturers, Mazda rose to 11th place in U.S. sales in May.

BOB STEVENS, Moon Datsun dealer in Lakewood, recently completed a $35,000 expansion of the facility and included in the addition a sauna room each for the shop employees and the executives. Although the idea is not new for large corporations, it is somewhat of a first for an automobile dealership.

FRANK MARSHALL, owner of Import Auto in Long Beach, just returned from a trip to France where he and his wife, Dorothy, visited Renault and Peugeot assembly plants.

MIKE SALTA was selected one of the first 10 California dealers and opened a new facility at 3670 Cherry Ave. last month. Sales of the new

The Opel story is simple. You simply get a lot more car for your money.

The new Opel 1900 offers many things as standard equipment that small cars offer as optional equipment. Or not at all.

For example, the Opel 1900 is the economy car with hydraulic valve lifters, just like the big American luxury cars, for a quiet-running engine and eliminating the need for adjustments.

The Opel 1900 has front power disc brakes for quick, smooth, straight-line stops. As standard equipment. Some small cars don't even have disc brakes, let alone power ones.

The Opel 1900 has lots and lots of room. About 5 inches more hip room in our back seat than the widest of the new small domestic cars. And please notice, the Opel has adjustable backs on its front bucket seats as standard equipment.

The Opel 1900 is one of the very few economy cars with dual front headlights.

The Opel 1900's trunk is 11.4 cubic feet big. That's bigger than some larger American cars. And if you've seen the trunk opening on any of the new small cars, you'll appreciate the new Opel 1900. You can get big things into the trunk without scraping your knuckles and elbows.

The Opel 1900 has a four-speed gear box as standard equipment.

And a three-speed, fully automatic transmission is available.

Notice, too, that the Opel 1900 gives you rear, swing-open side windows as standard equipment. An important comfort in ventilation.

Things like wheel trim rings, chrome drip rails, window trim moldings and fancy vinyl upholstery can really dress up a car. And they're all standard equipment on an Opel 1900.

But maybe you want an economy car just for the great gas mileage and easy handling. The Opel 1900 gets great gas mileage and we turn tight . . . 31.8 feet with only three turns of the wheel.

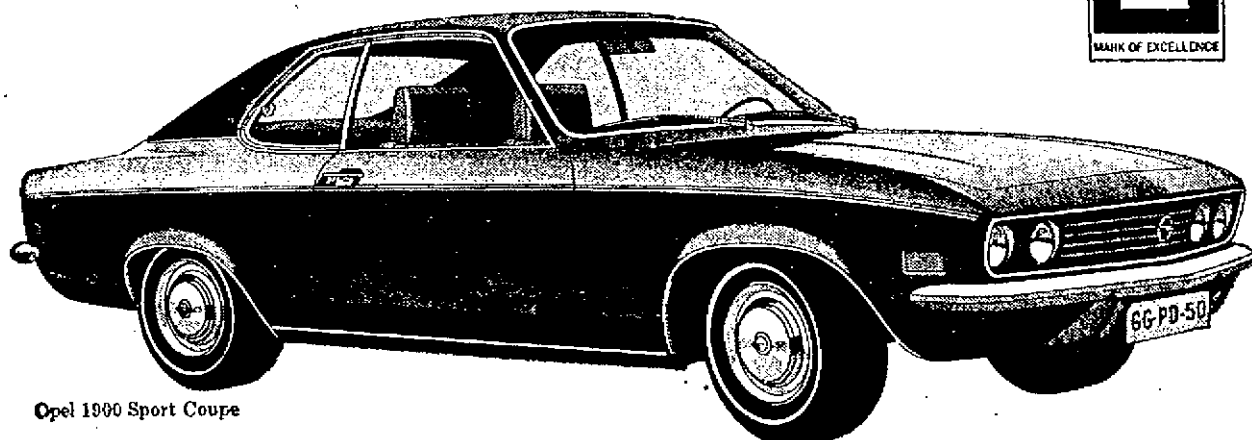

See all the Opel 1900s (1900 Sedan, 1900 Sport Coupe, the zoomy 1900 Rallye and the beautiful 1900 Wagon) at your Buick-Opel dealer's. Over 2,000 of them sell and service Opel from coast to coast.

While you're there, see the other new Opels, too. Available this year is a new four-door sedan, in addition to a two-door sedan and an economy wagon. And they've got many of the things the 1900s have.

Plus one other wonderful advantage—they're less expensive.

After you've seen all the new Opels, if you can find an economy car that you think gives you more than Opel, congratulations.

Toyotas get high marking

Road & Track magazine's annual Road Test Edition — currently on the newsstands — features the full Toyota import passenger car model lines for 1971 — Corolla, Corona, Mark II and Crown.

The 13-page section devoted to the Toyota model line features extensive road test evaluations, summarized with comparison charts comparing the individual Toyota model lines with competitive nameplates.

The extensive testing includes styling evaluations, safety features, accessories, fuel economy, braking tests, acceleration tests, speedometer error factors, and driver reactions to comfort, instrumentation, noise levels, steering and parking under normal city and highway driving conditions.

THE TOYOTA Corolla, Toyota's least expensive import model line, rates "fun to drive . . . luxurious and comfortable."

Toyota's Corona — long the company's "bread and butter" line in the United States — is, in the opinion of Road & Track's test editors, "the economy car to beat."

In commenting upon the Toyota Mark II, Road & Track reports, "its standard equipment is impressive, its finish is excellent and its performance and fuel economy above par . . . it seems nearly too good at $2244."

"Altogether, for what it is and its lack of pretense of being anything else, we like the Crown," Road & Track summarizes its evaluation of the Toyota Crown line and added:

"IN MANY ways it reminds us of the small Mercedes sedans in that both are solid and rattle-free and both have that "completely honest no-nonsense look and feel about them."

The Road & Track 1971 Annual Road Test edition

M G

UPPER LEFT: MGB. The competition-bred convertible for those who won't settle for less than a true sports car. Features include rack-and-pinion steering, fully synchronized 4-speed gearbox, racing type suspension and full sports car instrumentation.

UPPER RIGHT: MG MIDGET. The big difference is the price tag, the lowest of any true sports car going. Features include close-ratio 4-speed gearbox, racing type suspension, rack-and-pinion steering and sure-stopping front disc brakes.

LEFT: MGB/GT. A first-class grand touring automobile that's also eminently practical. A meaningful difference that means, among other things, better gas mileage and a higher resale price. Plus the features that assure you the kind of performance worthy of a GT built by MG.

U.S. to get record MGB

LEONIA, N.J. — Pro-British Leyland Motors Inc. has announced that the 250,000th car, a brilliant orange fastback MGB-GT, was driven off the assembly line at the MG plant in Abingdonon-Thames, England, by George Turnbull, managing director of the Austin-Morris Division, the manufacturing entity of the British-Leyland Motor Corporation which builds MGs.

The car is coming to the United States where it will be featured in a nationwide sales promotion. The decision to send the record-setting MG to this country was based on the fact that the U.S. has been the number one world market for MGBs.

CONTINUING POPULARITY in the U.S., as well as in the home and other export markets throughout the world, have kept the MGB in production longer than any other single sports car model. Since its introduction in 1963, the MGB has consistently topped its sales record here each year with 1970 setting an all-time high of 19,359 MGBs and MGB-GTs. Continuing technological improvements coupled with the rugged monocoque construction and reliable Series "B" engine have contributed to its longevity.

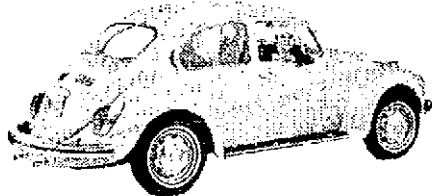

Performance is a key factor for any sports car

It's what you get for the price.

It's luxury like fully-reclining bucket seats, vinyl interior and nylon carpets that are standard even on Toyota's lowest-priced model, the Corolla Sedan.

It's convenience like the back seat that folds down and opens to the trunk for greater carrying room in the new Corona Hardtop. Or it's a trip odometer that lets you know how many miles you drive from one place to another.

It's quiet, efficient engines like the Mark II's 108-hp OHC engine that delivers power as well as outstanding gas mileage.

It's optional equipment like an automatic transmission, factory air conditioning, stereo tape deck, and vinyl top.

It's styling like the new Toyota Celica ST.

There are many reasons for Toyota's success. But price is the reason all the others are so significant.

TOYOTA

'Hustler' pre-eminent in Datsun line

Topping Datsun's line for 1971 is the highly praised 240-Z "personal car" which has been received in this country more successfully than any other sports car of its type in more than a decade.

Rated by the nation's leading sports car experts and publications as the best sports car buy on the market today, the 240-Z features a powerful 2.4 liter SOHC (single overhead camshaft) engine, a smooth shifting four-speed floor mounted transmission, independent front and rear suspension and other luxury items found only on much higher priced Grand Touring cars. Available in 1971 for the first time will be an optional positive shifting three-speed fully automatic transmission.

With an all ports price of $3,596, the Datsun 240-Z, a two-passenger fast-back coupe, comes equipped with such no-cost items as front disc brakes, 10 degree reclining bucket seats, signal seeking radio with electric antenna, radial tires, tinted safety glass and back window defroster. Many more safety and convenience features also come as standard equipment.

A spacious interior, designed with safety in mind, affords comfort and convenience so far unobtainable in a car of this class. Full quick reading instrumentation including water temperature, oil pressure, ammeter and fuel gauge are recessed in a completely padded dash.

bined with windows-up fresh air system, which also accommodates ducts for air conditioning (optional from dealers), makes the 240-Z an extremely quiet riding sports car.

The Datsun 240-Z is a blending of race proven performance and safety features, contemporary styling and luxurious appointments which are usually found only on sports cars costing much more.

Low maintenance requirements coupled with 25 mpg fuel economy and such advanced features as independent front and rear suspension, front disc brakes, and a 96 horsepower SOHC (single overhead camshaft) engine, combine to make the Datsun 510 two-door and four-door Sedans top buys for 1971.

A smooth shifting all synchromesh four-speed floor mounted transmission, windows-up flow-through fresh air system, all steel unitized body, extra wide doors, white sidewall tires, deep foam bucket seats, door to door carpets, heater and defroster and tinted safety glass on all windows are just a few items included as standard equipment.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Play it cool with portable picnic coolers, the National Bureau of Standards (NBS), U.S. Department of Commerce, suggests.

In a recent voluntary product standard which was distributed to industry, the NBS recommended including a safety feature in portable coolers that will allow the lock to be opened from the inside. If followed, these requirements would help insure that children, who accidentally became trapped in the coolers, could release themselves.

Youthful finance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Here's money information — from Purdue University economists who analyzed spending patterns of a group of boys and girls in grades eight through 12.

The spending ranged from $3 to $10 a week and two-thirds of the youngsters had part time jobs. More than two-fifths were employed five hours or more a week during the school year. Allowances were a more common source of money in the lower than in the higher grades.

Pre-school push

NEW YORK (UPI) — When teen-agers do their buying for back-to-school, they spend more than $2.2 billion in 60 days. So says Seventeen magazine, basing its say-so on two new surveys showing that teen girls and college freshmen do more buying in the months of August and September than any other time.

During that two-month period in 1970, the nation's 6.9 million high school girls spent $1.6 billion on clothing and some $391 million on non-fashion and work items.

Fiat stresses training in three-speed converter

Fiat engineers evaluated automatic transmissions the world over before settling on the General Motors European built three-speed torque converter version which will be installed as an option in 124 Special Sedans and Wagons for 1971, according to D. E. Manning, president and chief executive officer of Fiat-Roosevelt Motors Inc., U. S. importer-distributor.

Although it is one of Europe's major industrial corporations, the Italian company decided to utilize an outside automatic gearshift because only America, of its 120 principal world markets, is accustomed to that convenience, the executive continued. To design and build its own would have been uneconomical.

Built in a new plant in Strasbourg, France, and already in use in two cars of GM European subsidiaries, the transmission met all of Fiat's stringent parameters. Although it is similar in concept to the most expensive American GM automatic, this unit was designed especially for small engines.

This means it utilizes the more limited horsepower of the small engine to the fullest possible capacity and yet is a small, relatively lightweight unit itself.

"No Fiat dealer will be permitted to sell 124 Automatics until he has a specially trained mechanic on the premises," Manning declared. "This is in line with our policy of trying to assure knowledgeable quality service as part of the package of buying a Fiat."

THE GM transmission basically is a hydraulic torque converter with a three-speed planetary gearset. It has these features:

—It's fully automatic. Put it in Drive and it selects the proper ratio for the conditions itself.

—It responds instantly to kickdown for full acceleration (without the driver having to move anything but his foot).

—It can be held in Low or Intermediate regardless of throttle opening, for driving on narrow winding roads and similar conditions, by keeping the selector lever in Low or Intermediate positions. It cannot upshift unless told to.

—It can be downshifted manually by merely moving the selector lever from Drive to Low or Intermediate for more effective braking action.

GM automatics have an enviable reputation for smooth shifts. Using the transmission in the new Fiat is no different from driving any GM car Stag. A new kind of Triumph.

For years, Triumph has been making fine sports cars for people who love cars. Now Triumph introduces a sports car which loves in return.

To all the things that make a true sports car good to drive, the Stag adds all the things that make a car good to ride in. Stag adds power to Triumph's rack and pinion steering and front disc brakes. It combines more room and comfort with Triumph's road hugging, independent suspension.

The engine is a big, smooth V-8, making the Stag the fastest car in the line. There's true 2 plus 2 seating, electric windows and a solid, padded roll bar, even when the top is down.

Big, wide doors make it easy to get in and out, controls are in easy reach of your fingertips, and both the reclining bucket seats and the padded steering wheel are fully adjustable.

Base price is $5525* including chrome wire wheels and radial ply tires.

Options include a detachable hard top with a heated rear window, automatic transmission, air conditioning, and the pleasure of test driving the Stag here.

Opel ups models to 10, presentation lists dramatic distinctive-styled 1900 series

FLINT, MICH. — Buick Motor Division has announced it is expanding its Opel line of imports for 1971 to include the dramatic new 1900 series which features its own distinctive styling, including dual headlights and longer hood on coupe models, wider tread both front and rear, and power brakes with front discs as standard equipment.

All four models in the 1900 series and the Opel GT sports coupe will be powered by the 1.9 liter engine which has been equipped with hydraulic valve lifters for quieter operation. This engine, which carries an SAE rating of 90 gross horsepower, also is available as an option on most other models in the Opel line.

The four models in the 1900 series, all two-doors, include a sedan, a station wagon, a sport coupe and a Rallye coupe.

THIS BRINGS to 10 the total number of models in the Opel line, the largest assortment of body styles offered since the German import was first introduced by Buick dealers in 1964.

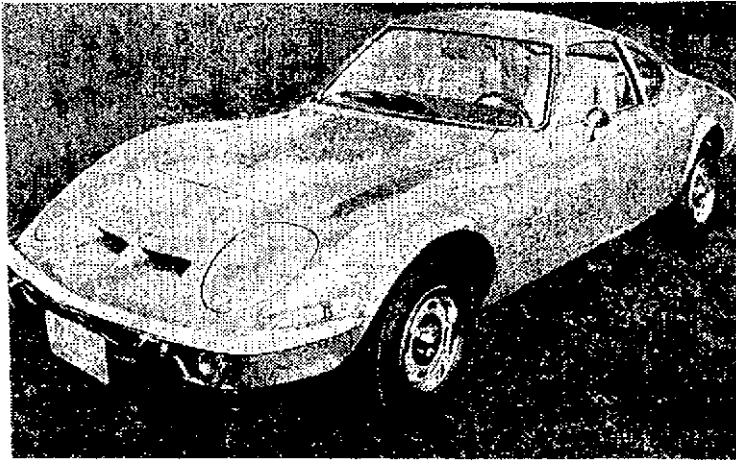

Included in the 10 models is a four-door sedan, marking the first time a four-door Opel sedan will be marketed in this country since 1968.

The 1900 coupe and Rallye coupe feature, in addition to the longer hood, a short rear deck with the roofline blending tastefully into the rear surface, creating a sports car feeling. Front door windows are one piece. Dual sealed beam headlamps, along with a bold blacked-out grille in a horizontal theme, are featured on the 1900 models. The rear styling features large tail lamps and back up lights with a wide rear window.

The two 1900 coupes have front bucket seats with perforated vinyl inserts. All instruments are new for 1971 with improved serviceability as a feature.

THE 1900 STATION wagon and two-door sedan have a more formal styling, highlighted by single headlamps and bright aluminum grille.

Coil spring suspension in front and a modified three-link suspension in the rear, coupled with the wider tread, gives the Opel 1900 ride and handling characteristics usually found only in cars much larger in size.

The other models in the Opel line, which retain their crisp, clean styling with a number of new exterior and interior refinements, will consist of two and four-door sedans in both standard and deluxe versions and a station wagon.

ALL ENGINES have been modified for quieter operation and operate efficiently and with lower exhaust emissions on unleaded or low lead fuels, or on any leaded regular gasoline with a research octane number of 91 or higher.

The four-speed, fully synchronized manual transmission will continue to be standard equipment on all Opel models. In addition, the three-speed automatic transmission will be optional on all models using the 1.9 liter engine.

A tinted windshield is available as an option on most 1971 models and an electrically heated rear window is offered on most models. A heavy duty cooling system also is offered as an option on all models equipped with the 1.9 liter engine.

A Buick-approved dealer-installed air conditioning system will be optional on all 1971 models equipped with the 1.9 engine.

BMW has quality building

The new Opels will offer 11 exterior colors, four more than last year. Four of them — Strato Blue, Chrome Yellow, Flame Red and Aztec Gold — are carried over.

THE SEVEN NEW colors are Astro Silver, Glacier Blue, Alpine White, Jade Green, Fire Glow, Rallye Gold and Antique Bronze. Three of these — Astro Silver, Fire Glow and Rallye Gold — will be available on the Rallye and GT models only.

The Opel line has shown remarkable growth since its introduction into the United States in 1964 with sales of 14,788 units through some 500 Buick-Opel dealers the first year. At the present time there are approximately 2,100 Buick-Opel dealers and 1970 calendar year sales are expected to exceed 92,000 units.

The Bavarian Motor Works, although the smallest automobile manufacturer in Germany, is Munich's favorite child. BMW builds automobiles that are exemplary in technology and function, totally tuned to the driver. Not mass produced, but tailor-made.

BMW products have set a standard far beyond their native borders. BMW has revolutionized motorcycle construction, contributed many chapters to the history of aviation and given a new dimension to automobile construction.

For the Bavarian Motor Works, "made in Germany" has always been more than a mark of origin. For BMW, these words are a seal of quality and an obligation.

Until now it was true to say: Sporty automobiles can not be comfortable.

A SPORTS CAR YOU CAN AFFORD WHILE STILL YOUNG ENOUGH TO ENJOY IT.

It's a cruel trick of Fate that most sports cars are too expensive for many of the people who get most out of them — people under 25.

That's why Fiat designed the 850 Spider. It's the lowest priced true sports car you can buy in America. It lists from $2405.

And, for many people, it's the best looking sports car on the market under $10,000.

Fiat has more experience than any other car maker in the world when it comes to building small high performance engines.

The red line on the 850 Spider's power unit is all the way up at 6,500 rpm and it enjoys working at those speeds.

And with disc brakes in front and independent suspension all round, you get all the road holding you need to handle the hard driving this car encourages.

It's one of the kinder tricks of Fate that the best sports car under $3,000 is the one that's furthest under $3,000.

FIAT

FIAT

Fiat 124 Sport Coupe. Twin overhead cams, 5 forward speed synchromeshed stick.

Fiat 124 Spider. Twin overhead cam engine wrapped in styling by Italy's Pina-Farina.

Fiat 124 Family Wagon. Comfort plus load space. Your family never had it so good.

Fiat 850 Racer. All the quality, fun, racy looks of the Spider under hard top.

Fiat 850 Sedan. Not a car on the road does so much, gives so much, for so little.
